Situation Can't Be Changed This Year, He Declares

BY GEOFFREY GOULD

Washington —(AP)—The United States is committed to second place in the missile race at least until the end of 1961, says a key air force general, and nothing can be done now to change it.

Lt. Gen. Bernard A. Schriever, head of the air force's research and development command, said yesterday he pleaded in 1953 and 1959 for more missiles.

But it takes two years to get increased production of missiles, Schriever said, and two years from now new and better missiles should be ready for production. So it is useless now to urge more production of the present generation of rocket weapons, he indicated.

"Increasing the number of missiles in your inventory isn't like turning a faucet on or off," he told the house space committee. "We are committed now to the number of missiles we'll have for the next two years."

About Equal Now
The United States and Russia are about equal now in the number of missiles, Schriever said. "But next year, if our intelligence estimates are correct, they will have superiority in numbers."

Even so, Schriever said, this does not mean Russia will have more over-all military strength. "You can't equate the total deterrent position with the number of missiles."

Schriever lined up with Gen. Thomas S. Power, head of the strategic air command, in urging funds of keeping a large number of armed bombers in constant flight, to avoid being destroyed on the ground by any sneak attack.

Power was rebuked by President Eisenhower for taking a "parochial" attitude. Sec. of Defense Thomas S. Gates, Jr., and Gen. Nathan Twining, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, have said Power's view was unrealistic and have defended the defense budget.

Johnson Says He Will Not Bid for Party Nomination

Albuquerque, N.M. —(AP)—Sen. Lyndon Johnson created a stir at the western Democratic conference with word he will not seek the presidential nomination.

In fact, he said, he couldn't say whether he'd accept the bid if it came to him at the party's Los Angeles national convention in July.

The Texas senator outlined his position at a news conference yesterday on his arrival to address Democrats from 13 western states, with 271 of the 761 votes needed to win the nomination.

A year ago in Albuquerque, Johnson was reminded, he said he was not a candidate. Had he changed his mind? No, he hasn't.

Would he accept the nomination?

He'll make that decision at the time it happens—if it happens, he said.

The senate majority leader was definite on this point:

"I will not seek the nomination."

Johnson coupled his announcement with statements attempting to refute assertions that (1) he's a conservative and (2) as such he doesn't stand a chance for the presidential bid.

Civil Rights Bill Not Likely to Go To Senate by Feb. 15

Issue May be Tacked Onto Measure Passed by House

BY JOHN CHADWICK

Washington —(AP)—Civil rights legislation apparently will ride into the senate on the coattails of some house-passed bill not related to the explosive issue.

Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Texas) is committed to letting the senate start its battle over civil rights measures on Feb. 15. An agreement on the timing was worked out in the dying hours of the last session of congress.

Hearing Ended

But it appeared today that no bill on the subject will be available for the senate to act on at that time and that it will be necessary to call up other legislation and to try to attach civil rights amendments to it.

The senate rules committee concluded hearings yesterday on measures to protect Negro voting rights. But Chairman Thomas C. Hennings, Jr., (D-Mo) said it would be impossible to have a meeting before Feb. 17 to act on the proposals.

Hennings, a staunch booster of civil rights legislation, said too many committee members will be away next week for Lincoln birthday speeches to have a representative meeting of the group.

Earlier hopes that the house would pass a civil rights bill and send it to the senate before Feb. 15 have been virtually abandoned.

Johnson hasn't disclosed what course he will pursue under these circumstances, but other senate sources said the only recourse appears to be to try to hook civil rights measures onto some minor bill already passed by the house.

Johnson coupled his announcement with statements attempting to refute assertions that (1) he's a conservative and (2) as such he doesn't stand a chance for the presidential bid.

Finch Tells of Wife's Death

Shooting Accident,
Physician Asserts
At Murder Trial

Los Angeles —(AP)—Dr. R. Bernard Finch told the jury at his murder trial that he knelt sobbing at the side of his dying wife and heard these last words:

"Take care of the kids."

The words came from the mortally wounded woman in a near whisper, the doctor said, and then "she just went limp."

The doctor's attorney, Grant B. Cooper, asked and was granted a weekend recess.

Dr. Finch testified his wife's shooting was an accident. The pistol discharged, he said, as he tried to throw it away after struggling with Mrs. Finch over the weapon he himself had taught her to shoot.

Tried to Get Gun

"I was going to throw it," he said, "to get the gun away so we wouldn't have any more wrestling with the gun. I got it here," he said, showing how he meant he started to throw it with his left hand, "and it went off."

The shooting, Dr. Finch said, followed a scene of violence in the Finch garage at suburban West Covina—during which he said he struggled with his panic-stricken wife, then with the family maid, Marie Ann Lidholm, 19, who came running at Mrs. Finch's cries for help.

It all came about, Dr. Finch said, from his desire to talk to Barbara that night about her getting a Nevada divorce.

Shooting in Havana Laid to Cuban Guards and Police

Gunfire Believed to Have Been
Effort to Curb Student Outbreak

BY RICHARD VALERIANI

Havana —(AP)—The impression developed today that all the shooting which threw the opening of the Soviet exposition into turmoil came from trigger-happy Cuban guards and police.

Continuing silence at police headquarters and newspaper handling of yesterday's big story contributed to a widely held belief the gunfire that marred Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan's visit came solely from official efforts to break up an anti-communist demonstration.

Every Havana morning newspaper except the conservative Diario de la Marina played down the shooting, which erupted in a nearby park minutes before the scheduled inauguration of the Soviet exposition at the Fine Arts palace.

Revolution, the organ of Prime Minister Fidel Castro's, confined its coverage to a brief box below the fold of the front page. It blamed "rich children" instigated by counter-revolutionaries.

Sues New York City As Result of Accident

New York —(AP)—British actor Martyn Green is suing New York City for $150,000 as a result of losing his left leg in a commercial garage elevator accident last fall.

Through his attorneys, Green yesterday filed his claim with the office of City Comptroller Lawrence E. Gerros.

Green charged negligence on the part of the city's police, hospital, and health departments.

Young Man Shot To Death, Parents Badly Wounded

Manitowoc —(AP)—A young man was shot to death and his parents seriously wounded early today in their apartment near the southern edge of the Manitowoc business district.

The body of Norman Anderson, 20, was found on the floor of a middle bedroom. His father, Jacob, 46, was lying on the kitchen floor, a .22 caliber rifle behind him, when police arrived. Mrs. Anderson, who was about 42, was lying wounded on the floor of the living room near a shattered television set.

Officers said the shootings in the 6-room upper floor apartment occurred about 7:15 a.m. They said they were seeking to question a married daughter who was believed to be in the apartment at the time of the shooting and who fled to a neighbor's home.

Delays Plan For Increase In Revenue

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Madison—A citizens revenue study commission Friday decided that the state should get rid of the personal income surtax and chop down local property taxes by about 25 per cent, or a total of $130 million.

But the blue ribbon advisory group got very little closer to answering the question the governor and the legislature posed when it was formed a year ago:

How should such a substantial volume of tax money be replaced?

The commission which has been at work for more than a year under the mandate of Gov. Nelson and the legislature narrowed down the alternatives available for tax replacement, but it avoided a commitment on the sales tax or the income tax as methods.

May Combine Plans

Dr. Miller Upton, Beloit college president who is chairman of the group, hinted broadly that in the end the commission may recommend a combination of the two.

It was significant, however, that Upton obviously was driving the commission toward a conclusion.

The citizens' committee holds the center of the Wisconsin political stage. The legislature is in recess, awaiting its report. The developing state political campaign between the Republican and Democratic parties seems likely to turn on the issues of state and local finance and taxation. There is an increasing public awareness, according to politicians, of the inevitability of basic surgery on the traditional Wisconsin state-local revenue system.

3 Proposals

These are the alternatives the committee agreed it will choose from when it writes its final recommendation to the legislature:

1. A combination of higher personal income tax rates and the incorporation of a general sale tax in some form into the revenue scheme.

2. Stabilizing income tax rates at the levels provided now in the normal income tax law, and providing new income primarily through a sales tax.

3. Raising the enormous additional sum wholly through an upward revision of the present individual income tax rates.

Recommended Cuts

The committee agreed that it wants to cut about $75,000,000 from the residential property tax bill of Wisconsin, reduce the personal property tax by $55,000,000 through the exemption of farm livestock and merchants' and manufacturers' inventories, and repeal the personal income surtax.

Reports Gains in Surgery

Russian Tells How Dogs Loan Legs and Kidney to Aid Science

BY JOHN BARBOUR

New York —(AP)—The dogs in the Institute of Experimental Surgical Apparatus and Instruments in Moscow.

When the dog's legs or kidneys are cut away by the surgeons the blood vessels in the dog's body are clamped off.

The leg is immediately perfused with circulating fresh blood of the same type as the dog from which it came. The limb is then refrigerated to about 35 degrees Fahrenheit.

The kidneys are not perfused with blood, but they are refrigerated.

Some have been kept as long as 28 hours before being returned to the dog.

All of the blood vessels are joined together again by staples and sutures. Nerve sheaths are joined together. Bone is fastened by small metal nails.

After several months even the nerve has begun to regenerate within the sheath, Dr. Lapchinsky said.

Dogs operated on six years ago are as frisky today as other dogs—and they have feeling in the once separated leg.

Another Soviet scientist, Dr. Mikhail M. Tarasov of Sklifosovsky Institute in Moscow, told how the Soviets have been using the blood from cadavers for transfusions in living patients.

Such blood now can be stored for four to five weeks after a person dies, Dr. Tarasov said. It is used on about 80 per cent of the patients at his institute, he added.

The shooting took place in the Downunder tavern on N. Sixth street.

Battle Among Democrats Worries Party Leaders

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Madison — Important Wisconsin Democrats who are avoiding participation in the acid exchanges between Democratic presidential camps are worried about the weakening effect of such quarrels upon the party as a whole in its struggle with the Republicans later in the year.

The battle between Humphrey and Kennedy partisans for control of the Wisconsin Democratic national convention delegation has scarcely begun, but it has already reached a bruising stage. The champions of Sen. Kennedy are crying "dirty pool" against the leaders of the campaign for Sen. Humphrey as a result of Humphrey's success in pushing through a delegate apportionment rule that ostensibly favors their man.

One party leader who has resolutely kept out of the fight but who is plainly worried about its self-defeating possibilities is Gov. Nelson.

Intends to Referee

His worry was the reason for his extraordinary and firm announcement this week that he intends to act as a kind of "referee" and to call "fouls" on each side when he sees them perpetrated.

Although Nelson is the titular leader of the Wisconsin party by virtue of his rank, he has usually been reluctant to assert the power that presumably goes with that stature. In this instance he appeared to welcome queries from reporters at his news conferences, and to be anxious to put on the record his insistence that the Humphrey-Kennedy fight shall be confined to issues.

Behind his unprejudiced declaration is the fact that the first term governor has no illusions about the difficulty the Democrats face in their design to stay in power in the capitol and to turn back the attack of the Republicans a second time in the fall. The governor has already begun a campaign schedule that is usually not approached by an incumbent until late in the summer—with three or four days of speech-making weekly, and with as many as four speeches each day.

Another practical although not so obvious reason for the concern about the neutral Democrats in the presidential candidate bout is the fact that such contests are costly in energy and resources.

When a substantial portion of the working politicians of the party invest heavily of time and strength in the spring, they may not be as eager to plunge into a later campaign against the Republicans in the general election.

Often more important is the exhaustion of financial resources in a spring delegate fight. A statewide campaign has become steadily more expensive. The money spent to win votes in April won't be available for the campaigns in August and September.

GOP Hasn't Such Worries
One of the presidential candidates recently announced that he is seeking $100,000 for his delegate quest here. Most politicians privately say that the figure is highly conservative. A really effective statewide vote seeking effort would cost considerably more. Contributors who are solicited successfully this spring probably won't be as easy to tap again later in the year, the politicians know.

Partisans who lose the spring delegate fight after a bitter campaign, moreover, may not be ready to forget their disappointments and to join hands with the victors in the fall.

Such considerations are more pertinent than usual this year because the Republicans have no such worries. They will elect a slate of national convention delegates pledged to Vice President Nixon, who is unopposed for the nomination, in a nominal campaign with only quiet effort.

Their organization, the campaign treasury and their spirit will be maintained intact for the assault upon the Democratic state administration and the campaign for a return to statehouse power in November.

Hospital Movie

"Hospital Sepsis," a movie about bacteria in hospitals, will be shown in the city council chambers at 1 p. m. Monday for county nurses, school nurses, the Visiting Nurses association and the public. Appletton Memorial hospital and St. Elizabeth hospital will show the film to their staffs later in the week.

Chamber Seeks Office Site

Organization Wants Part-Time Secretary In Business Area

Kaukauna — Directors of the chamber of commerce are studying a central office in the business district and hiring of a part-time secretary.

At a luncheon meeting, directors felt establishing a downtown office would benefit the chamber and at the same time be a convenience for visitors or strangers to the city. Directors agreed to investigate office sites both on the north and south side of the river.

It is hoped a secretary can be found who also serves as secretary to some professional man because the chamber cannot afford a full time secretary.

James Bamberg serves as secretary of the organization at the present time, but has informed members he will be unable to continue in that capacity due to press of other work.

The meeting concluded with a discussion on parking problems on both sides of the river.

Special 3-Year Study

United Nations Group Cites 16 Rules To Safeguard Religious Beliefs

United Nations, N.Y. — The United Nations has come up with a set of 16 rules or basic principles for safeguarding man's right to be a believer or non-believer in religion.

They could be the basis for an international treaty designed to protect such rights. The principles were drafted by Arcot Krishnaswami, a scholarly Indian lawmak-er, after more than three years of study authorized by a 14-member U.N. subcom-mission on prevention of discrimination and protection of minorities.

Guide Rules

They were examined exhaustively at a 3-week session of the subcommission just concluded here and put in final form for eventual consideration by the U.N. general assembly.

It is the subcommission's hope that the rules can serve as a set of guiding principles for governments before agreement is reached on an international treaty.

One rule says parents or legal guardians shall have the prior right to decide upon the religion or belief in which their child should be raised.

Compel No One

In the case of a child who has been deprived of its parents, their expressed or presumed wish should be taken into account, but with the best interests of the child the guiding principle.

The POWER of FAITH

by Howard Brodie

Abraham Lincoln lived in faith. At Springfield, his home town, he voiced his reverence for Christ's commandment, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart . . . and thy neighbor as thyself." Leaving Springfield for Washington, he said, "Without the assistance of that Divine Being . . . I cannot succeed. With that assistance, I cannot fail." En route, he said, "I shall be happy indeed, if I shall be a humble instrument in the hands of the Almighty . . ."

In Washington he prayed daily and called prayer "talking with God." There, he was not afraid to stand and face the struggle of the Union, or to kneel for strength. Although he liked the idea of those who prayed "not to be heard of men," he is known to have kneeled alone and with others in prayer, and to have asked, "Pray that I may have strength and wisdom."

In a tribute to Lincoln, David Lloyd George said: "He is one of those giant figures, of whom there are very few in history . . . They are no longer Greek or Hebrew or English or American—they belong to mankind."

should be compelled to re-sure that no adverse distinc-tion based on religion or be-lief may result.

Members of the subcom-mission served as experts and not as policy-making representatives. But the debate reflected policies of their individual homelands at times. Mrs. Z. V. Mironova, the Soviet expert, objected at one point that Krishnaswami's report did not pay sufficient at-tention to discrimination against atheists.

Other Members
Justice Philip Halpern of Buffalo, N.Y., the U.S. ex-pert, declared the Soviet Union bars teaching of religion in private educational insti-tutions, and he sought safe-guards against such prac-tice.

In addition to the United States and the Soviet Union, the experts came from the United Arab Republic, Lebanon, Uruguay, Britain, Philippines, France, Poland, India, Austria, Sudan, Finland and Chile.

Accused Murderer Leaves Hospital For Cell in Jail

Garvin Gillham Says He Will Hold His Story Until Trial

BY DICK McDANIEL

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

New London — "Wait until the trial . . . then you will hear my side of the story" commented Garvin Lee Gillham, 33, Chicago, when he was released from New London Community hospital Friday afternoon.

Gillham faces a first degree murder charge in the death of Frank Heidemann, 40, Jan. 8 at Heidemann's route 2, New London, home; attempted first degree murder charges in connection with the shooting of his former wife, Gloria, 23, and Lyle McCully, Waupaca county patrolman, and a charge of causing great bodily harm to his former wife. He was released into the custody of Sheriff Ray Abrahamson and Sgt. Loran Frazier, Waupaca county policeman.

Sheriff Abrahamson and Sgt. Frazier took Gillham to the Portage county jail at Stevens Point, a maximum security jail. Sheriff Abrahamson said that the Waupaca county jail is not a maximum security jail.

Chest and Elbow Wounds
Gillham is tentatively scheduled to be arraigned at 11 a. m. Monday before Police Justice of the Peace George Whalen, Waupaca.

Sheriff Abrahamson reported that Gillham is recovered sufficiently to stay in jail without special medical attention. He was shot in the chest and elbow by McCully after Heidemann was shot and killed.

The sheriff announced that a doctor will see Gillham about once a week to watch the progress of his recovery. Mrs. Gillham, shot in the stomach and hip, was released from the hospital about a week after the shooting. She claims that she was shot by Gillham while she was hiding in the attic of the Heidemann home. She was employed there as housekeeper.

McCully was shot in the right hand by Gillham before returning the Chicago man's fire.

Star Witness
While at the hospital here, Gillham was kept under 24-hour guard.

Star witness in the murder case is David Gillham, 20, Chicago, who claims he saw the shooting. He is a nephew of Garvin Gillham and accompanied him from Chicago to New London on the day of the shooting.

Richard E. Johnson, Waupaca attorney and former district attorney, has been appointed to prosecute Gillham by Circuit Judge Herbert A. Bunde, Wisconsin Rapids, upon request of Dist. Atty. G. K. Anderson.

Guards who watched over Gillham at the hospital here said they were impressed by Gillham, claiming that he is a "nice guy."

Other hospital employees also reported he was a model patient.

Winterfeldt's car was demolished, police said.

Shiocton Motorist In Good Condition After 3-Car Crash

Paul Winterfeldt, 46, Shiocton, was reported in good condition today at New London Community hospital after being injured in a 3-car crash Friday morning on Highway 76.

Winterfeldt received a face and knee cuts and a back injury when his car was slammed from the road by another and careened through a ditch into a power pole, county police said.

The car which struck Winterfeldt's auto was driven by Edward M. King, 53, Shiocton. King's car bounced off Winterfeldt's into that of Mrs. Bernice Vollmer, route 1, Black Creek, police said.

Police said Mrs. Vollmer's car stalled on the hill about a mile north of Greenville, and she flagged Winterfeldt to stop. Winterfeldt braked to stop and was struck by King as King tried to pass.

Winterfeldt's car was demolished, police said.

tax of 25 per cent which now yields $25,000,000.

So ambitious is the tax replacement goal of the commission that it may not be politically practicable.

The $155,000,000 sought to be replaced—without taking into account the steady annual increase in state and local expenditures—would be the equivalent of a 5 per cent general sales tax of the kind in effect in most of the sales tax states.

The sum would be one and one half times the present yield of the state income tax.

Even in combination, it would require a hefty sales tax and heavy increases in personal income tax liability to produce such an amount.

Higher Excise Levies

The committee also indicated, without voting specifically, that it will urge a miscellaneous package of excises on tobacco, beer, autos and other commodities, and review traditional tax exemptions for some forms of business organizations before preparing its annual report.

The committee concluded that the relief of local general property taxes should be in the form of a homestead exemption plan, or through channeling huge new sums of state money into localities for the reduction of school taxes.

A Heart, a Head and a House is used by Gen-Ral Enterprises, according to Gene Kloes, manager and co-owner. The firm, which is located at 203 N. State street, is now in the stereo phonograph and TV business as well as sewing machines and vacuum cleaners, it was announced today.

The stereo industry is coming alive again, Kloes said, "but by and large, the stores downtown cannot obtain proper accoustical sound to demonstrate to the buying public the true value of hi fidelity and stereo sound. That is where we have it over them by playing and displaying these units in our own home, where the accoustical atmosphere is like unto that of your own home."

Gen-Ral has two big rooms full of Phonographs and TV sets, nicely displayed. Bob Ballou, who works with Gene Kloes in this end of the business, permits the customer to select the type of music most endearing to their hearts and ears. Then in the comfort of a real home, the full value of sound in the round may be appreciated.

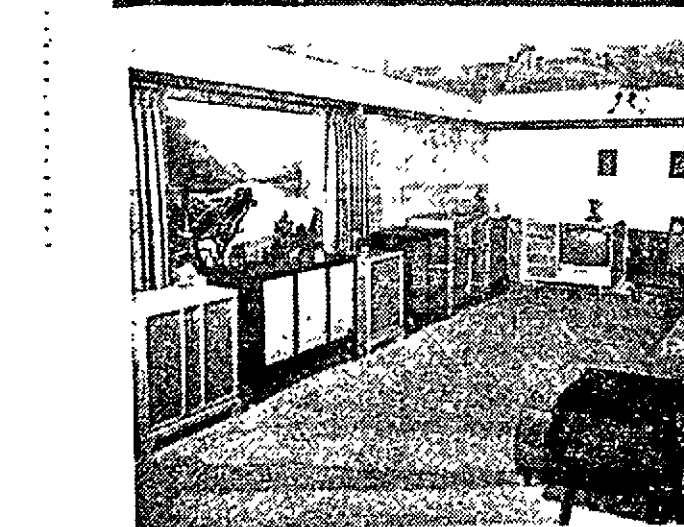

The Trim, Spirited Studebaker Lark Convertible can be seen at Laux Motor company, 634 W. Wisconsin avenue. Laux also handles Chrysler, Plymouth and Imperial. The Lark convertible is a new model for 1960 and is the only convertible being offered in the convenience-size car field.

With its powered top and attractively styled body supported by a heavy gauge X-frame, the Lark convertible is offered with a thrifty six-cylinder engine or a more powerful V-8 motor. Purchasers also have a choice of conventional, overdrive or automatic transmissions.

The addition of the two Lark convertibles, plus four new models of four-door station wagons rounds out the first complete line of body styles in the convenience-size car field. Studebaker has not marketed a convertible since 1952.

The Lark convertibles will become part of the Regal line with either six or V-8 powerplants. The Lark styling incorporates harmony with comfort, convenience and durability.

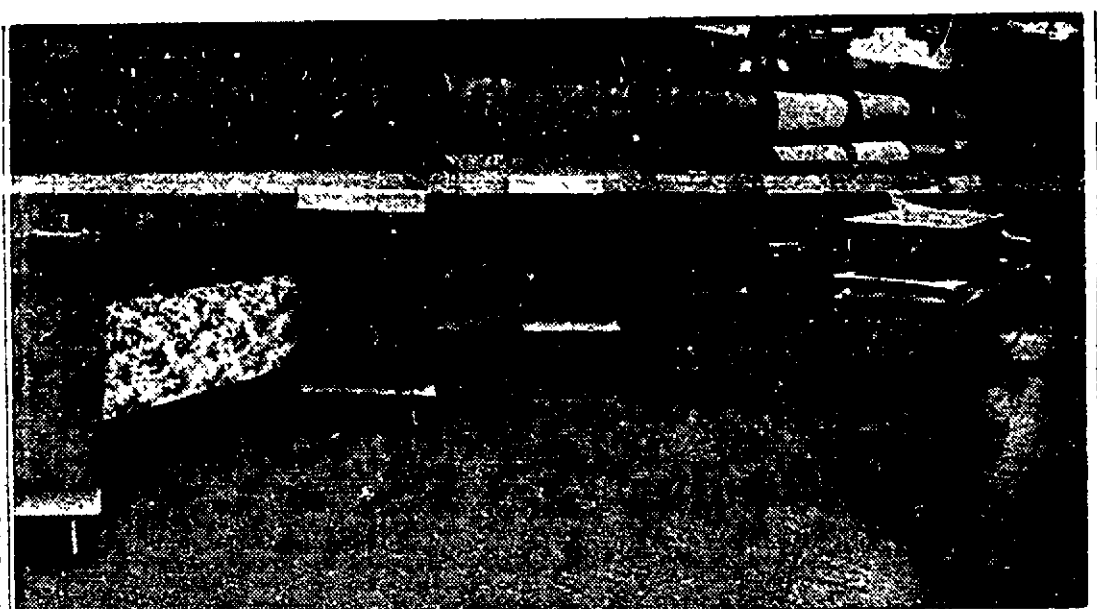

Laux Motor company, 634 W. Wisconsin avenue, is located in the middle of auto row. They have been the dealers for Chrysler cars for 21 years but recently took on the new Lark and Hawk by Studebaker to fill out their line.

New Spring Patterns in carpets and draperies are coming in daily at the Carpet Shop, 506 W. College avenue, for exciting interior decorating. The telephone number of the Carpet Shop is RE 3-7123.

Fred J. Duprey of the Carpet Shop, 506 W. College avenue, returned this week from Chicago where he attended a showing of the latest designs in carpeting and draperies for the coming seasons.

Duprey said there was a striking trend toward the popularity of gold and beige this year in interior decorating. Pastels were also played up, including shades of melon, pumpkin, beige, sandalwood, turquoise and aqua.

Solid colors in draperies are durable and a perfect choice in the public eye, Duprey said, for Colonial and Early American-furnished rooms, the firm feels.

The nubby antique satins are very good and also popular are sheer imported silks in gentle pastels.

The Carpet Shop, the valley's largest and most complete floor covering store, has recently added an Early American section and have a large selection of wood braided ovals. They are colorful, Smooth, Uncluttered Lines impart a look of balanced beauty to this 1960 Oldsmobile Super "88" convertible. The Appleton Oldsmobile dealer is Rector Motor company, 212 N. Division street. According to Dick Uehling, vice president, the luxurious interiors of the Oldsmobile are newly designed. A Quadri-Balanced ride that is smooth, safe, steady and silent is built in as new nylon sleeve shock absorbers and larger, live rubber body mounts give the 1960 Oldsmobile the "quietest ride you've ever tried", Uehling said. The new Olds can be seen at the Auto show at Valley Fair Feb. 11, 12 and 13.

BELLING PHARMACY
Prescriptions Are the Heart of Our Business according to Belling Pharmacy, 204 E. College avenue, and "your health is our business" which has been Belling's motto for the past 65 years. The store's modern redwood and Tennessee stone exterior is shown in the picture above and is the place where medicines are carefully compounded as ordered by your physician. Phone number of the firm is RE 3-5551.

"Reading a doctor's prescription is not quite as hard as breaking a code. What appears to be scribbling is really medical shorthand that physicians use to tell us your needs," according to Bellings. It can be read by pharmacists anywhere and lets them, by any doctor from Seattle to your pharmacists, fill any prescription no matter which doctor writes it. Chances are they could fill a prescription from Afghanistan. No matter what it looks like to you, the important thing is that they can read it and serve your needs. The firm also said that as pharmacists, they are able to fill any prescription written by any doctor from Seattle to St. Petersburg. It's possible because prescriptions are written in a standardized script that doctors use to tell them your needs. Bellings continued that having your prescription in their files can be especially helpful to you when you want to renew a prescription. Then they can phone your physician for authorization (when necessary) and have your medication in your hands... often in just minutes. Yes, your health is Bellings business for the past 65 years.

West Germany's Economic Miracle

The Republic of Germany, which was created in September, 1949, out of territory held by the occupational powers, France, Britain and the United States, has experienced such remarkable developments that it has been called the "economic miracle."

Now, at the end of its first decade, the German government looking back over its brief history notes that among its great accomplishments are the restoration of sovereignty to the West German people, the unification of Western Europe, the establishment of friendly relations with neighboring states, particularly with France.

The visit of President Eisenhower to the German republic last August was recognized by the German people as the crowning event in a series which has taken the German people from war with the western nations to a solid alliance with their former enemies. No one can deny that the German republic is an outstanding success. Within it during the past ten years more than 6,000,000 jobs have been created, the number of employed has increased from 20,000,000 to 25,200,000. Unemployment dropped from 8.8 per cent to 0.9 per cent. National income rose from 74.5 to 170 billion Deutsche marks and per capita income increased 78 per cent.

French Honor Increases

The success to date of President Charles De Gaulle in his personal battle with the Algerian insurgents has cemented his power in France and also gained for him reluctant support around the world from some who had withheld it. The fact that the French parliament, called to emergency session, has ratified his means of dealing with the Algerian problem indicates that France at last may be maturing politically.

De Gaulle has been a controversial figure for half a century and the opposition to him, outside of his own country, seemed to stem from his arrogance, emphasis upon French honor, and his apparent belief that he was the only one to lead France out of the chaos in which it has existed for a number of years. But his solution for Algeria, announced last year, caught liberal thinkers off guard. De Gaulle clearly was backing self-determinism for the Algerian people, once peace had been re-established. Increased educational and office holding opportunities have been offered the Moslem population in the meantime.

In this recent and most serious dispute with the European residents of Algeria, De

Advice to Bill Collectors and Deadbeats

Everyone has bills to collect or bills to pay at some time or another and thus is in position to profit from the advice given to the Central States Conference of the American Collectors association in Chicago recently.

Dr. Gary Steiner, University of Chicago, told the group that may persons do not pay bills and paradoxically feel guilty about it. "They feel so bad that their minds refuse to entertain any thoughts on the subject. Consequently if they don't think of it, they can't remember to pay the bills." That is the opinion of Dr. Steiner.

The problem is that of separating the guilt feeling from the debt. Dr. Steiner suggests that motivational research might offer a solution.

Looking Backward

Crescent Called Pro-Slavery

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for the week of Jan. 28, 1860.

"PRO - SLAVERY" the Ripon Times terms the Appleton Crescent, saying it is "the most unqualifiedly pro-slavery paper in the State."

We feel disposed to regard this as a compliment to the frankness of the Crescent. Unlike a few score of our State contemporaries, we speak just what we think and believe in regard to Negro Servitude, our Constitutional obligations to let Southern members of the Confederacy govern themselves as what to them seemeth the most proper so long as they do not nullify the Constitution and its laws, without let or hindrance from us. We say it is our duty to abide by and sustain the decisions of the Supreme judicial Tribunal of the Union in all questions arising out of the Constitution, Laws, or Treaties of the United States.

If this course entitles us to be termed "pro-slavery," we accept the appellation. We had rather be a Pro-Slavery than a Nullification organ.

25 YEARS AGO
Saturday, Feb. 2, 1935

Col. H. A. Smith, special counsel for the state conservation commission, announced that the Wisconsin Supreme court had been asked to pass on constitutionality of a 1933 law giving the commission power to regulate fishing and hunting on boundary waters.

Gov. Philip LaFollette's proposal to tax incomes, utilities, gifts and inheritances to raise $5,000,000 for relief was to be discussed publicly by its supporters and critics at a joint finance committee hearing.

Mrs. F. W. Schneider was elected president of Over the Tea Cups club. Mrs. Joseph Koffend was chosen vice president and Mrs. Joseph H. Marston was named secretary and treasurer. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Joseph H. Marston.

A field service similar to that offered city people by the Home Owners Loan corporation was established by the Wisconsin Farm Credit administration in district No. 11, which includes Winnebago county. H. A. Sheridan was named district field supervisor.

10 YEARS AGO
Saturday, Feb. 4, 1950

Special services Sunday and dinners Monday and Tuesday evenings were to commemorate the thirty-fifth anniversary of the organization of Trinity English Lutheran church that week, the Rev. C. H. Zeidler, pastor, announced.

Walter Adrian, Menasha, was named executive vice president and secretary of the Badger Paper mills of Peshtigo and his brother, Alvin, was named office manager.

Larry Zick and Steve Sommers as chairman and vice chairman, respectively, were to direct the first Neenah Kiwanis home show since the war. The event was scheduled for March 30, 31 and April 1 at the S. A. Cook armory.

Mrs. Russell Hotchkiss, New London, was elected president of the St. Paul Episcopal guild at the home of Mrs. Walter Brandow. Mrs. Brandow was elected vice president, Mrs. Bernard Brown, secretary, and Mrs. C. D. Feathers, treasurer.

Two Greatest Presidents

BY CLINTON ROSSITER

The myth and reality of American history seldom come within shouting distance of one another. Occasionally, however, happy legend and hard fact match up almost exactly. An example is the judgment that the two best presidents we have ever had were George Washington and Abraham Lincoln.

George Washington's influence was felt upon the presidency even before there was a presidency. No single fact had more to do with the shaping of this splendid office in the Convention of 1787 than the universal assumption that Washington would be chosen as its first occupant.

The most meaningful judgment one can make of Washington's eight years in the presidency is that he fulfilled the hopes of the friends of the Constitution and spiked the fears of its critics.

Feared Precedents

The hopes of its friends were that the creation of an energetic executive would provide authority to execute the laws with dispatch and vigor. The government of the new republic was in desperate need of power, power to make policy and power to carry it through. Article I of the Constitution, which established congress' powers and duties, proved to be the answer to the first half of this need. Article II, which outlined the president's powers, as interpreted by Washington, proved to be the answer to the second half.

Some citizens of the brand-new American republic were scared to death that Washington might become a dictator. Actually, our first president used his powers with utmost caution, knowing he was setting precedents for those who would follow. On the other hand, you may be surprised to learn how Lincoln disregarded the Constitution to save the nation. The story is told here by a Cornell University professor.

He was certainly not a president in the image of the Roosevelts or Truman. When faced with a situation that called for decisive action, he took a painful amount of time making up his mind. He recognized that his decisions might set precedents for the long future, and this recognition gave an extra measure of gravity to his conduct of the office.

No Tyrant

When Washington was ready, however, he acted confidently and with courage. His major contributions to the concept of vigorous government under the leadership of a vigorous executive were in the field of foreign relations. The recognition of republican France, the proclamation of neutrality, the negotiation of Jay's treaty, and the refusal to lay diplomatic correspondence before the House of Representatives set precedents for all future Presidents to follow — or be counted failures.

Critics of the Constitution had feared that it gave the executive too much power, and that the government of the United States would go straight into tyranny. That it did not was the result of many factors, not the least important, the single-minded devotion of Washington to the principles of "republican government." Two or three arbitrary acts could easily have aroused a popular demand for an amendment to cut the presidency down to size. But Washington's conduct was always eminently constitutional. He did the new republic a mighty service by fitting the presidency carefully into the emerging pattern of American constitutionalism.

Humbled Hancock

He did a great deal more than this, of course, for he put his own enormous prestige behind the new Constitution and thus made it acceptable to the American people. His grand tours through the states reinforced popular trust in the Constitution and stirred popular interest in the presidency. On the first of these trips he fought a polite but dogged battle with vain Gov. John Hancock of Massachusetts over one of the most ancient questions of applied political science: Who should call first on whom? The battle was fierce, but a stubborn Washington, who insisted icily that Hancock make the first call, finally won a victory of profound symbolic importance for the authority of the new national government and for the prestige of its chief of state.

The humbling of a governor in 1789 and the enforcement of the federal laws in the Whiskey Rebellion of 1793 are two precedents that stood Dwight D. Eisenhower in good stead in the Little Rock crisis of 1957.

His Great Gifts

Washington's great gifts to the presidency were dignity, power, and constitutionalism. It has been said of Washington that he could have been a king but chose to be something more exalted: the first elected head of the first truly free government.

Lincoln came to the office with very few advance thoughts about the authority it embodied. Many of his critics were certain that his administration would prove too feeble. Lincoln soon proved them grossly wrong. He never was greatly concerned about the forms his actions might take. It was enough for him to act.

The way in which Lincoln moved step by step to sweeping authority can be read in the timetable of his actions in the 11 weeks of mingled despair and hope between the fall of Fort Sumter and the special session of Congress.

Lincoln's Steps

April 15: He calls out the militia to suppress the rebellion, and summons congress to a special session on July 4, 1861, thus giving himself a free hand to crush the rebellion swiftly without the vexatious presence of an unpredictable legislature.

April 19: He clamps a blockade on the ports of seven seceded states, a course of action hitherto regarded as unconstitutional except in foreign war.

April 20: He orders 19 vessels to be added immediately to the navy, "for purposes of public defense." He also takes a number of extraordinary actions. He pledges the credit of the United States for a temporary loan of a quarter of a billion dollars; authorizes persons "represented to him as being or about to engage in disloyal and treasonable practices to be arrested . . ." directs the secretary of the treasury to advance two million of unappropriated funds to three private citizens of New York absolutely unauthorized to receive them "to be used in meeting such requisitions . . . necessary for the defense and support of the government."

Suspends Rights

April 27: He empowers the army's commanding general to suspend the writ of habeas corpus along the line of communication between Philadelphia and Washington, in the face of almost unanimous opinion that the constitutional clause regulating the writ is directed to congress alone.

May 3: He boldly invades the reserved area of congressional power by appealing for "42,034 volunteers . . ." and by enlarging the regular army.

July 2: He extends from Philadelphia to New York the line along which the writ of habeas corpus may be suspended.

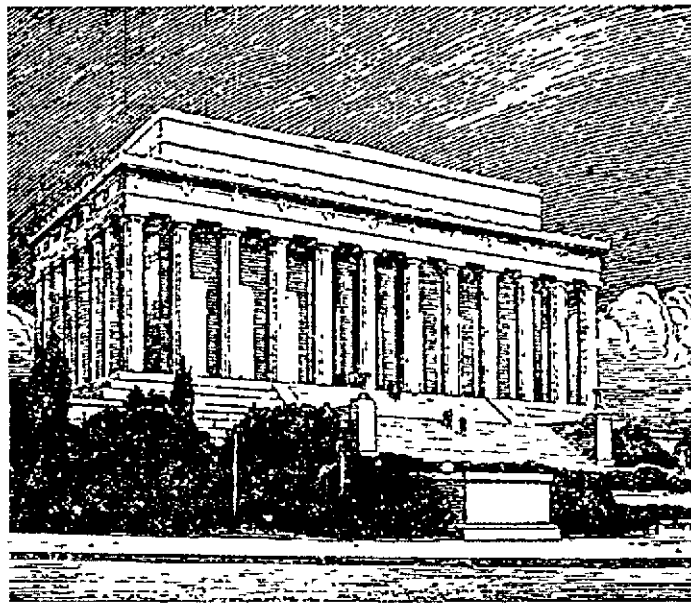

These actions add up to the so-called "Lincoln dictatorship," a pattern of presidential activity unparalleled in the history of the United States. By the time congress had come together on July 4, Lincoln had set on foot a complete program to suppress the insurrection.

Asked Ratification

Lincoln greeted the session with a special message, a remarkable state paper in which he described most of his actions, rationalized the more doubtful of these by referring to the "war power of the government," and invited congressional ratification.

He asserted that the power to suspend the writ of habeas corpus could belong to him as well as to congress, but he tactfully left

Kuehn-Olson Contest May be Interesting

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — When 39-year-old Jack Olson of Wisconsin Dells summoned capital reporters the other morning to confirm the carefully circulated rumors that he wants to be governor and will run for the Republican nomination, he allowed that Philip Kuehn of Milwaukee, his 40

Ike's latest endorsement of Dick Nixon sounds like one of those TV commercials: "The views expressed on this program are not necessarily those of the sponsor."

Since he proclaims himself as the candidate of "The Plain People," Hubert Humphrey obviously has given up all hope of the women's vote.

Ike raps air force generals as "parochial." When it comes to his birdmen, Ike stands for separation of perch and state.

The 1960 census is expected to show a nation of 170,000,000 people ambushed by teen-agers.

year old rival, "is a very capable young fellow."

But in the prepared statement that he released simultaneously there were some hints that the competition between the two young men may not be altogether friendly and that, indeed, it may be somewhat rancorous before the contest ends.

The statement said: "The decision to enter the Republican governorship contest was made by me. It was not dictated by any special group or clique or faction."

Standing where it did, the statement had an irrelevant sound to some listeners, but to those with attentive ears it might have been conected with the rumblings of criticism in some quarters that Kuehn, as the former GOP chairman, is the choice of the Republican high command for the governorship, the primary election laws notwithstanding.

THE OUTLOOK

The naked eye can discern that Kuehn, who is relatively better known to the organization men because of his longer acquaintance with them and his superior publicity resulting, is the favorite for the convention endorsement as the race begins.

It is also a reasonable guess that his earlier announcement and his several weeks of traveling around the state among the local politicians who will become delegates to the convention have brought about some commitments that Olson does not yet have.

What Olson is obviously banking upon — and the remark about cliques and factions were intended to be a hint — is the fact that Kuehn's record as a party organization chieftain may have some liabilities as well as some assets.

It is extremely difficult for anyone in the top ranks of politics to avoid making some enemies. Kuehn made some, not always of his own will, but he made them nevertheless. There are those Republicans who stood with Sen. Alexander Wiley, for example, in the Milwaukee convention hall in 1956 when the convention representing an organization headed by Kuehn decided to endorse another senatorial candidate and in the process to repudiate the senator.

There was the difficulty in 1957, when the Republicans lost the special election for senator to the Democrats and William Proxmire. The story of that incident is an extremely tangled one. The details are probably not as important as the fact that hundreds of Republican politicians didn't want to hold an election at all, and tend to hold responsible for that defeat the men who were in power at that time, including Chairman Kuehn and Gov. Vernor W. Thomson.

QUID PRO QUO

As noted in an earlier dispatch, the fact of a contest between two energetic and attractive young men for a Republican nomination is a refreshing thing, and should be a boost to the morale of the Republican party.

Yet there are signs that Olson is not yet quite aware of the implications of his position as an announced candidate for the blessing of the party organization.

He has declined to say whether he will run in defiance of the party endorsement. That is not likely to sit well with the local politicians whose backing he will solicit during the next few months. The first questions he will be asked as he travels about will be whether he regards the party endorsement as important enough to pledge his own support to the man who wins it, whoever he is.

He will be obliged to answer positively before the convention opens, to have a realistic chance of being the endorsed ticket nominee.

Robert Ryan to Star In 'Kilimanjaro' Spec

Arthur Godfrey's Second Show of Season Will Have Jackie Gleason as Guest Star

BY JINGO
Robert Ryan has signed to star in "The Snows of Kilimanjaro," Hemingway's famous story of a writer who sacrifices his talent on the altar of money. It's due March 25 on CBS-TV.
The second Arthur Godfrey special of the season will have Jackie Gleason as guest star. It's slated May 6 by CBS-TV.
A sequel to "Music for a Summer Night" bows on ABC-TV March 2. It's called "Music for a Spring Night" and will be a regular Wednesday series.
"Thriller," a full-hour series of classic and original mystery dramas, has been booked by NBC-TV for prime evening time next season. Filming of the first story starts Feb. 15.

Desi Arnaz stars as the operator of a North African gambling casino who gets mixed up in counterfeit passports, in "Thunder in the Night," the Desilu Playhouse production for Feb. 19. Rod Taylor and Akim Tamiroff co-star.
Jack Paar will produce and star in a full-hour special April 26. His first of this season met with less than enthusiasm.

Louis Hayward, originally announced as one of the stars of ABC-TV's "The Citadel," due Feb. 19, has withdrawn from the 90-minute play because of illness. Ann Blyth, Hugh Griffith and James Donald will star.
CBS-TV threw out some of the best stuff in Gwen Verdon's visit by "Person to Person." Policy reasons. One instance was an ad lib by her son who kicked the door shut with his heel upon entering and cracked, "I feel just like Loretta Young." Loretta's on that other network.

Look for a change in format of "Black Saddle." To bolster ratings, the producers have decided to keep the star of the show in the living room and off the ponies.
Dick Powell is screen testing Lena Horne for a role opposite Kirk Douglas in "Big Man, Big River." Miss Horne will duet a medley of tunes with Frank Sinatra on his Feb. 15 ABC-TV special. Frank's also got Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Mary Costa as guests that night.
Dana Wynter's signed to co-star with Stephen Boyd and Myrna Loy in "The Hellraisers." . . . Vic Damone and David Janssen will be in the movie "Hell to Eternity." Janssen is TV's Richard Diamond. . . . Aaron Spelling is writing another TV western series, "The Reno Brothers." Signed are Ben Cooper and James Beck.
Frank Lovejoy, Brian Donlevy, Sylvia Sydney and Margaret O'Brien co-star in "Escape," the story of a wounded bank bandit, on June Allyson's show Feb. 22. Paul Henreid ratings, the producers

Washington and Lincoln

Our Greatest Presidents

the subsequent disposal of this matter to the legislators. The whole tenor of his message implied that the government possessed a final power of self-preservation, a power to be wielded primarily by the president. In an instance of urgent necessity, an official of a constitutional state may act more faithfully to his oath of office if he breaks one law in order that the rest may endure.

Congress did what it could to cut him down from an Andrew Jackson, to, at the very most, a James K. Polk. Lincoln, however, although always respectful of congress, went forward resolutely on his power-directed course. He had brought the office of the presidency to a new plateau of power and prestige, and he kept it there to the end.

The Similarities

I think there was one profound similarity, and likewise one profound dissimilarity, between the presidencies of Washington and Lincoln. The similarity was essentially a question of style, for each was a pragmatic statesman who was most successful when he played by ear. Each accepted happily the ground rules of American constitutionalism, but within these rules he played the game with an eye for practical success rather than for doctrinal consistency. Each had virtually no precedents on which to fall back for aid and comfort, and each set a whole array of them for later presidents to follow gratefully.

The most important dissimilarity was in the roles they played. We are grateful to Washington because, in a time of construction, he was scrupulous in honoring the letter and spirit of the Constitution. We are grateful to Lincoln, because, in a time of dissolution, he honored the spirit of the Constitution by stretching the letter almost to its limits.

Star of 'Suzie Wong' In London Hospital

London—(AP)—Actress France Nuyen has been in a London hospital for six days with a serious throat infection, halting work of the multimillion-dollar movie "The World of Suzie Wong."

In Good Taste Invite New Friends to Large Party

BY EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: Could I be misunderstood as a "pusher" in a following instance? There are many women whom I have met in the last year at the afternoon parties of our mutual friends. While these women have never asked me to their houses, they are very friendly. May I ask them, and their husbands, whom I do not know, to a large cocktail party which my husband and I will give soon?

Answer: It is entirely a question as to how you feel about them. If you feel that you know them at all well, you may quite properly invite them to a large cocktail party.

Depends on Motive
Dear Mrs. Post: How wrong would it be for my mother to go back to her first marriage name? She was married many years to my father and several years after he died she married again but this marriage lasted only a year or so.

Answer: The propriety of this maneuver depends upon the motive. When the first husband's name is taken back because it was a prominent one, there is small excuse. But when a woman dearly loved her first husband and was very unhappy with her second, it is natural that she would want to take back her first husband's name—especially if it is also the name of her children.

Mrs. Post offers readers leaflets on a variety of subjects concerning etiquette. If you would like to have her leaflet, E-6, entitled, "What to Wear at Wedding Reception," send 10 cents in coin to Dept. E.P., care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N.Y.

Your Problems

Ann Advises Mother to Keep Son, Ex-Husband Separated

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My problem concerns my son who is 8. When he was a baby the boy's father left us. I had to have him traced at considerable expense, then go to court and force him to support us.

Two years ago I remarried. My present husband is a decent person and a good provider. He's wonderful to my son. My former husband has remarried also. His wife is a barfly and they are well-known to every tavern-keeper in town as a pair of undesirable characters.

My former husband has not once come to see his son, sent him a card or gift, or even phoned to see how he's getting along.

The problem is that the boy keeps nagging me to see his real father. He has tantrums and crying spells. Do you think I should let him visit his father for a weekend so he'll get it out of his system?—Out of My Mind.

Dear Out: If you want to be really out of your mind just start something between your 8-year-old child and his rum-bucket father.

A man who could ignore his son for eight years has demonstrated he has no interest whatever in the child. How could your son profit from a weekend with him?

Tell the boy you've lost contact with his real father and that he probably doesn't know where you are either. Encourage the stepdad to give him extra affection until he's over this emotional hump. In a few years he'll be old enough to know the score.

DEAR ANN: I'm a high school senior going steady with a girl who is a junior. We get along and she helps me with my homework. Also she's a good dancer.

Her sister is 14 and sort of a pest but she is smart for her age. Last night the kid sister called me on the phone to tell me my steady had accepted a date with a guy from out of town. He was here for the weekend visiting his roommate. I'm all shook up. I probably look like a punk to her after a college man.

Shall I tell my girl I know she two-timed me or what is the best way to handle this?—Betrayed Ray.

Dear Betrayed: Is that kid sister practicing to be an international spy? There's something unappetizing about this sort of informing. I hope you told her so.

Give your girl a week to volunteer the information. If she says nothing, tell her what you know. Ask for your ring, sweater, I.D. bracelet, picture and the assorted loot that symbolizes going steady. Then play the field—which is what high school kids should be doing anyway.

Trust Good Taste In Picture Hanging

What's so difficult about hanging pictures? Nothing really, if the two important guides of good taste and balance are kept in mind.

There's nothing mysterious about good taste, for most people possess it. But when it comes to hanging framed pictures on our walls, we're inclined not to trust our "taste."

According to the Picture and Frame Institute's decorating experts, good taste in picture hanging is found in that happy medium that lies between the two extremes of "overhung" and "underhung."

"Overhung" is a common fault in these days of mass picture groupings. When everything but the kitchen sink is thrown into a wall grouping, the end result is likely to be a cluttered, ill-defined grouping that overpowers everything else in the room, including the furniture.

When in doubt, says the Institute, leave it out. A little breathing space between pictures (best obtained by eliminating Aunt Minnie's gift entirely) is calculated to bring about a more pleasing, tasteful setting.

The other taste fault of "underhung" needs less definition, for we've all seen an itchy-bitsy picture hung on a great big wall. Here, the rule is to fit the picture to the wall space—a small picture for a small wall, or a grouping of several small pictures for a larger wall "underhung" is easier to correct than "overhung."

Balance, the second guide to picture hanging, means most importantly, balance of design and balance of coordinated color. Design balance can be found according to the Picture and Frame Institute by following the "rule of the eye." If, after standing back and carefully examining the picture setting in relation to the rest of the room, it looks harmonious, it probably is. But if the eye is continually drawn to one part of the grouping only, or to the furniture beneath it, then a little readjustment is needed to balance the grouping.

Same Color

Coordinated color balance is usually obtained by having framed pictures pick up a color from some other object in the room. This can be a pillow, or a color in your draperies or rug, or a chair covering.

At the same time, color coordination is found within a picture grouping by having all the pictures share a common color—either in the pictures themselves, or in the mats or frames.

Design in Picture Hanging in a problem area, the fireplace setting, is illustrated in this sketch with three good methods and one poor approach. In the poor design, one small picture is hung in the middle of the fireplace wall, adding nothing to the setting. More imagination has been used in the other settings. Top right is a group of pictures of various sizes and shapes. At the bottom left is one large picture which easily balances with the fireplace. The lower right setting shows an odd-shaped picture hung off center and balanced with a large planter.

Pussy Cat Flair Newest Trick for Eye Make-Up

To keep your eyes in the fashion picture this season, give them a tabby flair. The newest trick to get beauty-conscious types purring with satisfaction is the cat's-eye look, guaranteed to make a slinky minx take on the feline eye beauty of her favorite cat — Siamese, Persian, domestic.

The vogue for this eye makeup started at fashion showings in Rome, spread to Paris and quickly caught on in New York and Hollywood. Whether Mrs. Main street styles her eyes by the cats; however, remains to be seen. It's a look that is easy to like because it does have an air of mystery and suits the spiral and whirl-striped prints that are coming up for spring. Bikini-clad beauties at winter resorts and aboard cruise ships like the feline orbs that complement their leopard and tiger swim suits.

The diagonal sweep of your makeup aids does the trick in mastering the new makeup, says Hollywood makeup man Max Factor.

He suggests using eyeshadow stick in any one color or a merging of two or three colors to achieve the effect of fur or costume color you are wearing. Begin at the inner corner of the eye, and extend the shadow diagonally up to the temple. Diminish the color across the eyelids. End it at the outer corners of the eyes, fading it to nothing toward the end of the eyebrow. Blend it with your fingertips so the color is even.

You can set the slanty sweep of color by patting it down with a translucent powder.

Eye-lining is important to create the cat's-eye look. A brownish-black or wholly black liquid liner should be used, depending on your coloring. Brush a line along the upper lashes close to the roots. Extend the line about 1-16th of an inch beyond the outer corner of the eyes, upward at a slight tilt. Accent the inner corner of the eye. Note that the corner of the eye is where the cat's-eye shaping differs from other eye makeup.

Since cat's eyes are well-defined almond shapes usually, a makeup simulating them must cover both upper and lower lashes, says Factor. Lining the lower lashes calls for skill.

Use a narrow line to trace along the lashes, continuing around the tear duct and brushing along the lashes to the outer corner. If eyes are large, the upper and lower eye lines should converge in an upward pattern. If eyes are small, leave a little space between the two outer lines to make the eyes look bigger.

Artificial-lashes are very popular now, and almost must with the cat's-eye makeup, unless your own lashes are long. If you wear them, crop the lashes so that they remain sweepingly long at the outer corners.

Accent your eyebrows to slant along with the eye slant, using a sharply pointed pencil to make fine hair-like Strokes into your own brows. Cat-like, brows should be natural but on the thin side. For the best effect, pencil the first half of the brow at a diagonal, upward slant. Then arch it naturally out to the temple.

And the last step, says Factor, is to look to your face to clench the cat's eye look. Highlight the cheek bones at their highest point by delicately applying more powder to the cheekbones. Brush a tint of rouge along the hollows of the cheeks. Diminish this color down over the lower part of the face and blend.

Lips should be well defined with rather angular Cupid's bows.

Sheinwold on Bridge

'Come-on' Technique Important Signal Play

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD
U.S. Masters Team Champion

To play good bridge you must use signals. Your opponents will see the signals and understand them, but this is unimportant. The big thing is to get the right information to your partner.

The most important of all signals is the "come-on." To execute this signal, you play an unnecessarily high card when you are not trying to win a trick. If possible, you later play a lower card of the same suit. The combination of the two plays is sometimes called a "high-low."

For example, suppose your partner leads the king of hearts against a contract of four spades. Dummy has Q, J, 10 of hearts, and you have 9 and 2.

Able to Trump
You can tell your partner to come on with the hearts if you play the nine of hearts on his king. This is an unnecessarily high card.

Your partner continues by leading the ace of hearts, and you complete your signal by playing the deuce. This tells him to lead the suit again. He does so, and you ruff.

Your partner wouldn't know what to do if you didn't have this way of signalling. He might switch to a different suit before you had ruffed. Declarer would draw trumps, and your chance would be missed.

Showing High Card
Your signal doesn't always mean that you are planning to ruff. You may have high cards instead.

For example, suppose partner leads the king of hearts, and dummy has three small hearts. You have Q, 9, 2. You begin a signal with the nine. Partner continues with the ace and then leads a low heart to your queen.

You wouldn't signal if dummy had only two hearts. Dummy would ruff the third heart, and your queen would do no good.

The signal is not made automatically to show a high card. It is made to ask partner to continue the suit. He doesn't need to know the reason — as long as you have a good reason.

How High is High?
It's easy to signal with an unnecessarily high card when you have an obvious combination like 9 and 2. Sometimes you are not so lucky; you are dealt 3 and 2 instead. You must do your best, beginning your signal with the three.

The opposite is sometimes true. You are dealt 9, 8, 7 of a suit. Your partner leads the king, and you play the lowest card possible—the seven. You mean it as a low card, but it may look high to your partner.

To avoid misunderstandings, your partner must examine the trick and look at the dummy and at his own hand to see if he can find all of the missing lower cards. Even such an easy thing as signalling may occasionally be complicated.

Negative Signal
When my friend Jeff Morse was a cub reporter some years ago, he was sent out to cover a wedding and came back without a description of what the bride wore. The city editor told him to go back to the typewriter and complete the story.

"Teh story's complete as it is," Jeff insisted. "The bride didn't wear anything at all."

He had neglected to mention that the wedding took place in a nudist colony. (Jeff later discovered that he was not cut out to be a reporter.)

The bridge expert doesn't make this kind of mistake. He is interested not only in what he sees but also in what he doesn't see. Today's hand shows the sort of thing I mean.

Campus Club Plans New World Party

"Campus Club Creates the Strange New World" will be the title of the Campus club's party to be held at 8 p.m. Feb. 18 in the Terrace room of Lawrence Memorial union.

The group met Jan. 22 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Williams, 133 S. Meadows drive, to make arrangements.

and hopes to discard at least one of his low hearts on dummy's good club suit.

East is alert to the danger and must do what he can to indicate the correct defense. He must tell West which red suit to lead when he is given the ace of clubs.

Hearts Useless
East's hearts are useless for signalling. If East throws the 10 of hearts, it will tell West what to lead but will cost the defenders the setting trick. Declarer would be able to cover the jack of hearts with the King, and the defender's would get only heart tricks.

The deuce of hearts would be even worse. It would tell West what to lead, he tells East must resort to a negative signal. Instead of telling West what to lead, he tells him what not to lead. East plays the three of diamonds on the third round of trumps.

This does the job. West hasn't seen a thing about hearts, but he has seen everything else. He knows that spades and clubs are declarer's good suits. His partner tells him not to lead diamonds. Only hearts are left, so West must lead a heart.

After drawing three rounds of trumps, South starts the clubs, as planned. West steps up with the ace of clubs and leads the jack of hearts.

Keep Eyes Open
This puts the defenders in position to win three heart tricks, defeating the contract. Incidentally, it's worth noting that West must lead the jack, not a low heart. If West led a low heart, dummy would play low, and East would have to win the trick. East would be able to win a second heart trick, but not a third.

In general, a player's failure to signal may be just as important as the signal itself. Keep your eyes open for what doesn't happen as well as for what does.

Movie Star Capitalizes On Tall Willowy Build

BY VIVIAN BROWN
The drawback about being tall, says glamorous Rosalind Russell, might be that "you can't curl up on a man's lap." Otherwise you can be Queen of Hearts.

The vivacious movie queen has capitalized on her own willowly build, and would welcome three more inches, she's that happy to be tall.

"Why do girls play down height?" she asks. "They even develop bad posture trying to take off inches, and just call attention to their discomfort."

Rosalind, who is 5 feet 7 and looks much taller, points out that low shoes are a dead giveaway if one is self-conscious about height. Stand up straight and lift your chest bones, if you'd adopt a graceful tall-girl stance, she says.

Anyone who has seen Rosalind cavort in musical comedy on stage, screen or television knows that she doesn't try to conceal her height. She believes in emphasizing it.

Sheaths Better
"The sheath dress is much better for tall girls, not the bouffant style, more suitable for smaller girls. The pencil silhouette can show the lovely line of the thigh, a tall girl's beauty line," she observes.

Rosalind likes long stoles, although she doesn't think tall girls should go out of their way for flamboyancy—fluke hats, junk jewelry or too-high-style clothes.

"Costume jewelry is good if well chosen, but there is nothing to replace Grandma's old of trumps. He plans to lead

Minister's Wife Teaches Contemporaries Charm

Louisville, Ky. — "I feel so wicked," said the preacher's wife, daubing a touch of eye shadow to a once lusterless lid.

The daring lady is one of a group of ministers' wives who are experiencing what they feel is the greatest burst of female liberty since suffrage.

Five nights a week they gather at the home of Mrs. John H. Boyle and—amid giggles of devilry—take sheer delight in learning the secrets of charm.

"The Christian woman can look just as charming on the outside as her character is on the inside," declares Mrs. Boyle.

Started Five Years Ago
Her theory took root five years ago when Mrs. Boyle bristled at a remark by a professor at Southern Baptist seminary who was aware the attractive minister's wife was a former model.

"Why don't you give some of that stuff to preachers wives?" the professor needed. "Most of them walk as if they're following a plow."

That was all Mrs. Boyle needed. Many of her students are chagrined at first when Mrs. Boyle expounds some of her "revolutionary teachings." For example, "It's perfectly ladylike to cross your legs. It's how you do it that is the problem."

Family Diary

It goes without saying that I adore every member of my family, but there are times — however rare — when I could very well do without them. Such an occasion was last Thursday afternoon.

When John was leaving that morning I mentioned that I was going to have a visitor, Sybil Sandringham. "We met at a tea last week," I told him "and we're going to continue a very interesting discussion we had on heraldry."

"Heraldry?" he said and his eyebrows shot up.

"The art and science of armorial bearings," I explained smugly.

"I know what it is," John assured me. "I just can't see it."

what it's got to do with you. Or rather you with it."

"Women have intellectual interests too," I said. "We can't be completely tied down with housekeeping duties. As a matter of fact I took a special course in heraldry and once I presented a paper on it at the Woman's club that was very well received."

John grinned and ducked out of the house. I made the tea quite strong and cut the fruitbread elegantly thin, hoping that these touches would appeal to an Englishwoman. Miss Sandringham arrived early, dropped her mink jacket on a

Discussion Heralds 'Sinister Situation'

By Jeannette Griffith

"I'm afraid heraldry isn't one of my husband's interests," I said.

John sat down on the sofa beside her, picked up a book and gazed at a brightly-colored shield. "This is particularly handsome," he said.

Miss Sandringham leaned unnecessarily close and bent her head over the drawing. "Unfortunately," she said, "it has the bar sinister or, as it is properly called, 'the bend sinister.'"

"What is a 'bar sinister'?" Tommy inquired.

Bar Sinister
Miss Sandringham, her eyes bright with the eagerness to impart information, took a deep breath. "Well, the bar or bend sinister—"

"Is an amoral device," I finished for her. This was no time to discuss the fine points of illegitimacy.

"I don't know what you mean," Tommy protested.

"I know you don't," I told him. "And why don't you and Sally run along?"

Miss Sandringham smiled glowingly at Bruce and then at John. "How exciting it must be to be the head of such an intellectual family."

John cleared his throat and Bruce said in a rumbling voice, "I think heraldry is super."

Our guest turned to me. "I'm organizing a little club for some intensive study in the field of armorial bearings. I'd love to have you for a member — and Mr. Griffith too."

"How I wish I could accept," I said without hesitation, "but unfortunately my housekeeping duties keep me tied pretty close to home."

When the door closed behind Miss Sandringham John started to laugh, but I flashed him a sinister warning. And since then the word "heraldry" hasn't been mentioned in this house.

Our Children

Youngster's Goal May Differ From Parents'

BY ANGELO PATRI

It would be, indeed, an odd parent who did not have high hopes for his child. Hopes tend to become patterns and that is where thoughtful parents stop to consider things carefully.

Children do not come according to blue prints but each in a pattern of his own ordained by nature. This implies that before a parent sets a pattern for his child's way of life that he study the child in question to discover, if possible, what strengths he has, what weaknesses, with a view toward developing the strengths, overcoming the weaknesses and helping the child to fulfill his best self.

This could mean dropping the original plan and pattern and accepting another because it happens to be the child's "peculiar treasure."

There are occasions when a parent finds it hard to accept a child's wish and will to fulfill himself as he feels himself to be. The idea that a son or daughter insists upon what his loving father and mother know to be a precarious way of life is hard to take.

Better give them all the help possible and hope for the best. Fame and riches do not appeal too strongly to those who want to be teachers, clergymen, artists, and musicians.

Why should they? If wealth and fame always spelled successful living and therefore happiness that would be one thing. But do they? Isn't disappointment universal? Aren't frustrations, grief, unhappiness the common lot?

Isn't beauty, beauty of soul, of song, form, thought, havens for the world weary people everywhere, anywhere?

It is never easy for parents

Performs at Lawrence

Augsburg Choir Upholds Tradition of Excellence

BY HARRY KNOX

The 1960 Augsburg college choir more than upheld the college tradition of excellent choral groups when it presented its sacred concert Friday evening at Lawrence college under the skillful baton of Leland B. Sateren.

Dressed in blue velvet robes, the 65-voice a cappella group thrilled a sizable and appreciative audience, not only with its brilliant interpretation and overall quality, but with precision of attack and enthusiasm in a 3-section program that covered a span of 400 years of musical compositions. Selections ranged from the spirited "Exultate Justi" by da Viadana, 16th century composer, to the modernistic compositions of Paul Christiansen. After opening the program with its traditional 17th century chorale, "Thy Truth Within," the choir found an opportunity to execute exceptional breath control in Franck's "Lord, Whose Passion Didn't Reveal." The quality of the humming and the blending of each section created an organ-like sound which was well received by the audience.

The second section was highlighted by the premier performance of a new Norwegian folk tune, "The King is Knocking." Originally written for a choir and soprano soloist, it had several sometimes weird and haunting passages and gave both the choir and soloist a chance to test their skill.

"The Redeemer," written by Director Sateren, was divided into six movements musically related to each other which depicted the promise, birth, death, resurrection, ascension and return of Christ. Close tonal harmony was evident, with incidental baritone and soprano solos.

The final section, made up mainly of 20th century compositions, featured Christiansen's "Two Songs," divided into "O Jesu, My Savior" and "This is the Day." The two numbers offered a contrast in music and technique, with the latter noteworthy for fast patterns used with accents on the off-beat to give a bright and joyous effect which had a surprise ending.

AHS Orchestra To Play Music Composed for It

The Appleton High school orchestra will give the first performance of a composition by its director, Russell Thorne, at an assembly program Monday afternoon.

The work, a miniature suite which combines the string orchestra with a jazz trio of piano, string bass and drums, was composed for the AHS orchestra, Thorne said.

The concert also will play serious and light classical music, including the grand march from "Aida" by Giuseppe Verdi, "Tambourin" by Gretry, and "Like Young" by Previn. Among the highlights from "My Fair Lady" by Lerner and Loewe are "Get Me to the Church on Time," "On the Street Where You Live," "I've Grown Accustomed to Her Face" and "I Could Have Danced All Night."

Sharon Bauerlein will play a violin solo, "Blue Moon."

Going Places—

Phoenix Goes Western; Easterners Take Over

By Shirley and Bob Sloane
Phoenix, Ariz. — In the beginning there was the climate, and in Arizona that was all ye knew on earth — and all ye needed to know.

Each winter came the thrifty in their station wagons and the wealthy in their chauffeur-driven station wagons—that's as far as ostentation got—to toast or ride by day in the lee of Camelback mountain and await the cocktail hour when the gold of the sun turned the brown mountains to mauve, and the Valley of the Sun looked like a real oil painting.

By night there was nothing so worth doing as sleeping soundly in the rich and winery air. It was a sophisticated retreat in the truest sense where each enjoyed it equally and privately regardless of his station wagon in life.

Changes Made
But hot doggie and howdy pardner! you ought to see what's happened lately.

Phoenix has discovered it's in the West with a capital "W" and there isn't a high-heeled, ten-gallon Chicagoan or Hoosier who will let you forget it for a minute. In a land of transplants as thick with easterners as the Yukon in the Gold Rush, they've gone native with a vengeance that has turned this once cosmopolitan resort into one of the most provincial places on earth.

Flooded with ever-increasing number of retirees, automobile dealers and western garb merchants who will probably swell Phoenix's population to 1,000,000 in a decade, the area in a few short years has taken on the aspect of a little Los Angeles. The strongest emotion anybody can feel about the place is resentment that he wasn't born here—or, at least, didn't have sense enough to come a long time ago.

The last time we saw Scottsdale it was a newly incorporated suburb which seemed to consist mainly of an old west saloon called Lulu Belle surrounded by four corners of shops that sold leather jackets and Indian jewelry.

Today it is a city of 24,000 that bids fair to outstrip Phoenix some day. Many of the hotels and ranches situated here used to use Phoenix post office addresses, but now put "Scottsdale, Arizona" on their book matches and letterhead for better snob appeal.

No longer a novelty, Lulu Belle is surrounded by a round dozen of other saloons ("cocktail lounge" is for easterners) with such names as Red Dog and Pink Pony, though nobody ever saw a pink pony except a cowboy who had had too much red-eye.

The Red Dog features a one-man band in derby hat and arm garters, a mammoth chandelier and a balcony on the back wall with ominous closed doors along its length. All that's missing are the gaming tables and Marlene Dietrich slinking down the staircase.

The Safari hotel has lavender tinted mirrors which are supposed to make you look suntanned even if you're not, in which case they are more likely to make you look sick. Its buildings are painted sunset-mauve, an idea that makes some sense at sunset but also tends to bring to mind the queen's men painting the roses red in Alice in Wonderland.

For those who want to get away from it all, a worthy side trip these days is a visit to Frank Lloyd Wright's home and studio, Taliesin West, now open to the public. Don't look for Taliesin East—it's in Wisconsin.

A sprawling layout of low, angular buildings built with raw native stones and woods, it is an interesting, if odd, representation of Wright's philosophy that architecture should be subordinated to nature, and in the desert nature is long, low and rough.

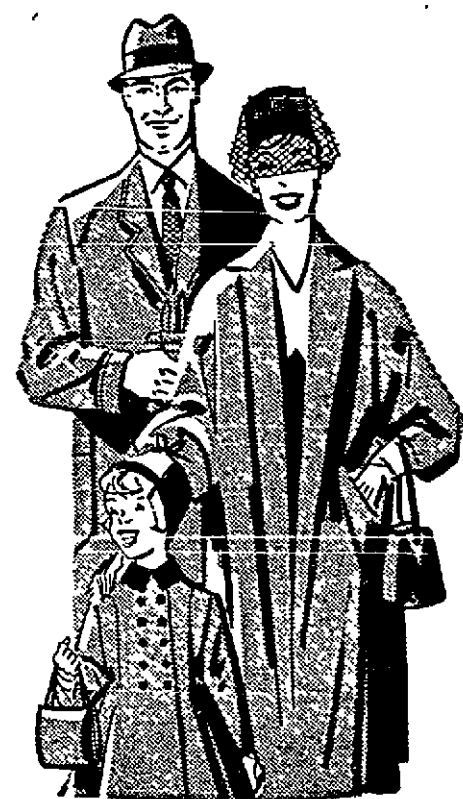

Appeal to you or not, Taliesin West is a good place to get back to the nature that made Arizona what it is in the first place, and away from the "natives" of four months standing who, like people elsewhere, do more by way of apologizing for the occasional cold snap than doing anything about it.

Only more so. We wonder who apologized for the weather before they got here. We think the lady doth protest too much.

Village to Buy 10 Acres for School Site

Combined Locks Picks $10,000 Wiedenaupt Tract

Combined Locks — Combined Locks State Graded school district has voted to purchase 10 acres from Henry Wiedenaupt for a site for a new grade school. Cost is $10,000.

The site is midway between areas now being developed residentially, the Wallace and Van Daalwyk plats. Tentative plans call for a roadway to connect the two plats, making the newly acquired property readily accessible to both areas.

The roadway also will provide the community with a second connecting street between the eastern and western sections. At present the only road is County Trunk Z.

Three possible sites were considered. Wiedenaupt, owner of a farm in the town of Buchanan and Combined Locks, had a second 10-acre tract with about two acres of it ravine, which he offered for $9,500. Combined Locks Paper company had slightly over six acres of land for $16,000.

Site Chosen — The site selected is all level land. Plans call for erection of a school with eight classrooms, an all purpose room and principal's office.

The school will be designed to permit adding eight more classrooms when needed. When completed it will be used for first, second, third and fourth grades. The existing school will house grades five through eight.

Three plans were shown the assembly but no decision as to which building to accept or on when to start construction was made. Initial sketches showed two of the buildings with 19,474 square feet of floor space and one of 20,038 square feet. Proposed additions would increase floor space to either 31,535 or 32,992 square feet.

A secret vote on the site resulted in 53 votes for the selected area, 46 for the second farm site and two for the mill area.

Village Aims Possibility of Water Plant

Board, Citizens Meet Informally At Combined Locks

Combined Locks — The village board and about 100 residents have discussed building a water plant.

The village now gets its water from Kimberly. Officials have been notified Kimberly cannot continue without undertaking a program of plant expansion. Without Combined Locks, Kimberly officials indicated the present plant would be adequate for Kimberly needs for about 10 years.

Should Kimberly expand facilities, cost would reflect on bills of Combined Locks users. Combined Locks' engineer reported during summer months, when water is at peak use in Kimberly, residents of southeast Combined Locks could find themselves in trouble in case of fire, due to low water pressure.

Own System — He presented figures showing the community could dig its own well and build its own plant for about $123,000. He estimated it would cost about $5,700 a year to maintain and operate the system. He also showed figures for a 20-year bond issue to pay for the plant.

If built, the water utility would pay for the bond issue, from its revenue, the engineer said. Water costs $3 per quarter minimum now. A suggested minimum of $6 per quarter was proposed if the village had its own well.

The engineer reported all figures were estimated high to be safe. Officials pointed out that if Kimberly increased its plant facilities, water bills might be increased up to $2 per quarter.

The well would be dug at the end of Elm street. An elevated tank would be erected in the park area. No official action was taken.

Elk Ladies Invited To Green Bay Brunch

Kaukauna—Kaukauna Elk ladies have been invited to attend a brunch at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday at Green Bay Elks club.

Those planning to attend are making reservations with Mrs. Carl Nagan by Monday.

Feb. 3 Was the Date, the weather ideal and the Fox river clear of ice as Charlie House, Post-Crescent columnist, pushed his "Green Apple" into the river for a trip to DePere from the Kaukauna boat club landing. On hand to lend support to Charlie and wish him well was Bob Westbrook, Commodore of the Kaukauna Boat club.

On the House

'Green Apple' With Charlie Aboard Plies Unseasonal Waters of Fox

BY CHARLES HOUSE Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Bluebird weather in February brought the Green Apple out of dry dock Thursday, and together the little canoe and I ventured on a historic trifle—we coursed the Fox river.

Not within the memory of living man has the old Fox river remained so completely unfrozen so far into a Wisconsin winter. Yet Thursday we cruised 20 miles from Kaukauna to De Pere with never a conflict with ice packs. Meanwhile, Fox river valley communities basked in a day of pleasant sunshine and a high temperature of 32 degrees.

"I have never seen so much of the river unfrozen so late in the season."

That seemed the consensus of rivermen.

Telephone calls to a number of area old-timers drew almost exactly the same response: Never has the river been open so late in the season.

Several recalled the old pleasure craft, the Dennisen, a Christmas-time cruise into the harbor and another cruise on New Year's day "some time in the early 1900s."

which is frozen, and which required unique kinds of labor. First we slid the canoe into the channel and pushed it where the ice was firm enough to support our weight. Then, on thin ice with Kupsh towing the canoe from the shore, and the reporter smashing the ice sheet with a club and the paddle to clear a path ahead, we managed to get the canoe waterborne after a long hour of yeoman labor.

A muskrat swam dully along the shore and flocks of mallards, buffleheads and teal circled overhead from time to time. A sharp-tailed hawk circled high over the right bank. Once I saw a downy woodpecker playing his trade on a tree trunk, but there was no more wildlife to be seen.

Saw Few People

Only twice en route did I see humans, except at the locks and in passing cars. Three small children played near a home on the old plank road near De Pere. My wave to them elicited no response; perhaps they were surprised. Highway workmen, applying tar to the road, waved to me and perhaps wondered.

Though it was bluebird weather elsewhere, a cold north wind tunneled down the river valley. Efficiently warm clothing was of little help; the breeze was damp, penetrating and bone-chilling. The water was 30 degrees.

At the Little Rapids lock, Lockmaster Clark anticipated my arrival at his domain. He gave a willing hand at the easy, slide-skid portage which still amuses me, then treated me to some welcome hot coffee and a slab of fine home-made apple pie.

Wind Fearsome

Striking out once more, the wind—cold and penetrating—punished me, but there was almost no ice except in the quiet bays and on minor shelves along the shorelines.

Where the lusty north wind had a long sweep at the old river, waves were choppy and strong but were easy to cope with. Except for an occasional dash of chilling spray and a cold, bold wind there was nothing to do but grin and man the tiller, and to shiver a little in cold discomfort.

But let the recorder of historical minutiae observe the month and the river, for this is Wisconsin and February—and the river is not wearing her ice for the first time in the memory of living men.

Lawrence Says

Defense Issues Should Remain In Confidence

Debate on U. S. Power Harmful During Cold War

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — Another general speaks up in dissent. He is a former member of the joint chiefs of staff. Since he now is retired, he can talk freely. He has long held the view that there is a nuclear stalemate in the world and that the next Lawrence war will be fought on the ground. So he wants to see more money spent for mobile ground forces.

These views, expressed by Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, until recently head of the U. S. Army, serve to emphasize the kind of problem facing the president of the United States as the commander-in-chief of our armed forces.

Gen. Taylor is sincerely dedicated to the defense of the United States. The ideas and advice laid before the joint chiefs of staff, the secretary of defense and the president are not new. What is new is the prodding of generals by Democratic leaders in congress who seek to publicize an impression that the defense of the United States is imperiled, even if it means telling the enemy more details of our defense preparations.

One would think that in a matter of such vital concern to the nation the committees would receive testimony in private, and for the committee chairmen thereafter to express themselves to the secretary of defense or to lay their views in confidence before the president. But that procedure would not get the headlines so necessary to assist the Democrats in their efforts to discredit the administration.

What Gen. Taylor says about the need for ground forces, on the theory that nuclear war will never be fought, is realistic. It is something the highest military advisers of the president took into account a few years ago when they favored the "new look." The policy laid down by the president called for a massive retaliatory power, with manned bombers, missiles and nuclear weapons of all kinds, to deter any aggression by a potential enemy.

Gen. Taylor, however, feels that the real danger lies in a possible encroachment by the enemy on our allies by land operations. This is what is called "limited war." It can be readily conceded that such a contingency might arise. The natural conclusion is that perhaps preparations should be made for both "limited war" and "unlimited nuclear war."

This would add at least $14 billion a year to our $41 billion budget for defense.

When a man who has been chief of staff of the army makes a declaration to congress that our defense set-up is "inadequate," it naturally gives the members something to utilize in their assault on the administration's policies.

Calculated Risk

Today, in the midst of a "cold war," it is not desirable for the president of the United States to engage in a public debate about what a potential enemy might do. If he feels that tensions have been relaxed for a while and that an airborne alert, for instance, isn't needed 24 hours a day every day in the week, he may be taking what is called a "calculated risk." But that's his responsibility. The generals have no diplomatic duties or over-all responsibilities for the economic welfare of the nation. They are concerned only with the tools they think they need to carry out every possible task in a war.

So the debate continues about alleged weaknesses and the importance of each category of weapons in every kind of military strategy. The president states that, in the judgment of the highest military officers on the joint chiefs of staff, America is safe and has sufficient deterrent power to prevent an enemy from attacking us. But

Last Quarter Rally Enables Kaukauna to Take 50-48 Decision

Kaukauna — The Kaukauna High school Jayvees gave an idea of things to come as they eked out a 50-48 win over Two Rivers here Friday night.

The two teams were deadlocked at 9-all at the end of the first period and the invaders held a slim 25-24 half-time advantage. Kaukauna fought back to tie the score at 35-all at the end of the third period and then took a 2-point scoring advantage in the final quarter to clinch the win.

The Jayvees relied on the free throw stripe as they were outscored 20-16 from the floor by the Purple Raiders.

Mike Reardon spearheaded Kaukauna's attack with 20 points on five baskets and 10 charity tosses while Steinhart led the losers with 15.

all this is brushed aside while the criticism is aired.

Maybe democracy will someday learn how to function without allowing controversial questions of defense policy to be dragged into politics. Maybe congress will someday take testimony in private and then consult with the officials of the executive branch. Maybe the chief executive, who gets intelligence reports about what the enemy is planning and doing, will be able to share them with the leaders in congress. In time of national emergency, like that involved in a "cold war," such delicate questions can be handled effectively in the public interest only in the privacy of the government councils, as is the customary in wartime. But an orderly procedure of this kind in "peacetime" appears selfish ambition no longer enrules the day.

the last 10 points — the final two with the gym almost vacant — the Papermakers emerged with a hard-earned 65-61 Mid-Eastern conference verdict.

By halftime it looked like the villagers might be on their way to their third straight loss. They were down by 15 points — and it has been a long, long time that a Kimberly club has been that far in arrears at the intermission — but a great third period comeback — 24 points worth — was the key to the final victory.

The hassle had a weird ending, the likes of which this old court hasn't seen in many a winter. Kimberly had tied the score with 47 seconds left and gone ahead 62-61 on a free throw with three seconds remaining but then —

Too Many Time Outs

Menasha speared a rebound and called a time out. It was its sixth (only five are permitted) and a technical was called. Don Hearnden made the free throw for 63-61. Taking the pass from out of bounds, Hearnden was fouled by Bill Gerhard as the last horn sounded and pandemonium erupted and to try to shoot free throws under those circumstances with a thousand screaming people on the floor would be murder.

Everyone left the gym except the scorekeepers and a few stragglers and from 5 to 10 minutes after everything was over, Hearnden moved Kaukauna—Trailing through most of the game, Kaukauna High school cagers lived up to their No. 3 billing in the state by coming from behind in the final four minutes to take a narrow 80-78 win over a battling Two Rivers team here Friday night.

For the second straight week, Kaukauna scored the win from the free throw line, hitting 16 of 23 attempts while the Purple Raiders made good on eight of 12 attempts.

Weyenberg Borchardt

The losers kept Kaukauna under pressure all night with a full court press, modified only for brief moments under the basket.

Tied 3 Times

The lead changed hands eight times in the first quarter and the score was deadlocked on three occasions with Two Rivers holding a slim 25-23 lead at the end of the period. Both teams had phenomenal shooting in the period with the invaders hitting from far out on the court while Kaukauna scored off a variety of patterns.

LeRoy Weyenberg tied the game at 25-all to open the second period after which Don Koprowski dropped a long jumper and Weyenberg scored on two free throws to again knot the count. Dave Belonger put the losers ahead with a free throw followed by a basket by Tom Lawrence and it was not until a minute remained in the third quarter that Kaukauna again took the lead.

Bendigo, Australia — World champion miler Herb Elliott ran his twelfth under-4-minute mile today—a 3:59.8 on a grass track at this Australian town 90 miles from Melbourne.

Elliott ran against a field of almost unknown opponents and apparently picked the remote site to test himself far from the eyes of the experts.

His world record for the mile is 3:54.5.

The wiry Australian has had less than two months of solid training so far this season, and many people felt he would be struggling to reach his old form.

Throughout the race he was buffeted by strong wind but after breaking away from the field at the half mile, he ran with tremendous strength and determination.

Cornell Registers 76-58 Win; Lawrence Shoots 22 Per Cent

BY MIKE DREW Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Cornell college's Ron Altenberg gave Lawrence's Vikings a lesson in shooting accuracy here Friday night. And, brother, how they needed it.

While Altenberg was pouring home field goal attempts at a 57 per cent rate on his way to a sensational 36-point evening, the Vikes were shooting 22 per cent from the floor.

The result was a 76-58 triumph for the Rams, their eighth in 12 Midwest conference starts. Lawrence, now 3-9 in the league and 3-11 overall, welcomes Beloit tonight (7:30).

Altenberg's 36-point effort was just five short of tying the Alexander gymnasium record. Lloyd Olmstead, also of Cornell, flipped home 41 points in a 1952 game.

The 6-0 Ram senior, a Cedar Rapids product, was bettering the previous No. 2 effort — 34 by Lawrence's Sid Ward in 1951. The wiry, jump-shooting Altenberg bullseyed 13 of 23 floor shots and 10 of 12 free throw tries before fouling out with 39 seconds left.

He had been rested, briefly, earlier after accumulating his fourth personal.

Paced by Altenberg's great work, the Rams made baskets at an impressive .441 pace. The other Cornell guard, 6-0 Rich Merz, counted 17 tallies to give the pair all but 23 of their club's scores.

Lawrence was topped by Jim Rasmussen (13) and reserve Marty Gradman (12). It was the top effort of the season for 6-3 sophomore Gradman.

Just 14 Buckets

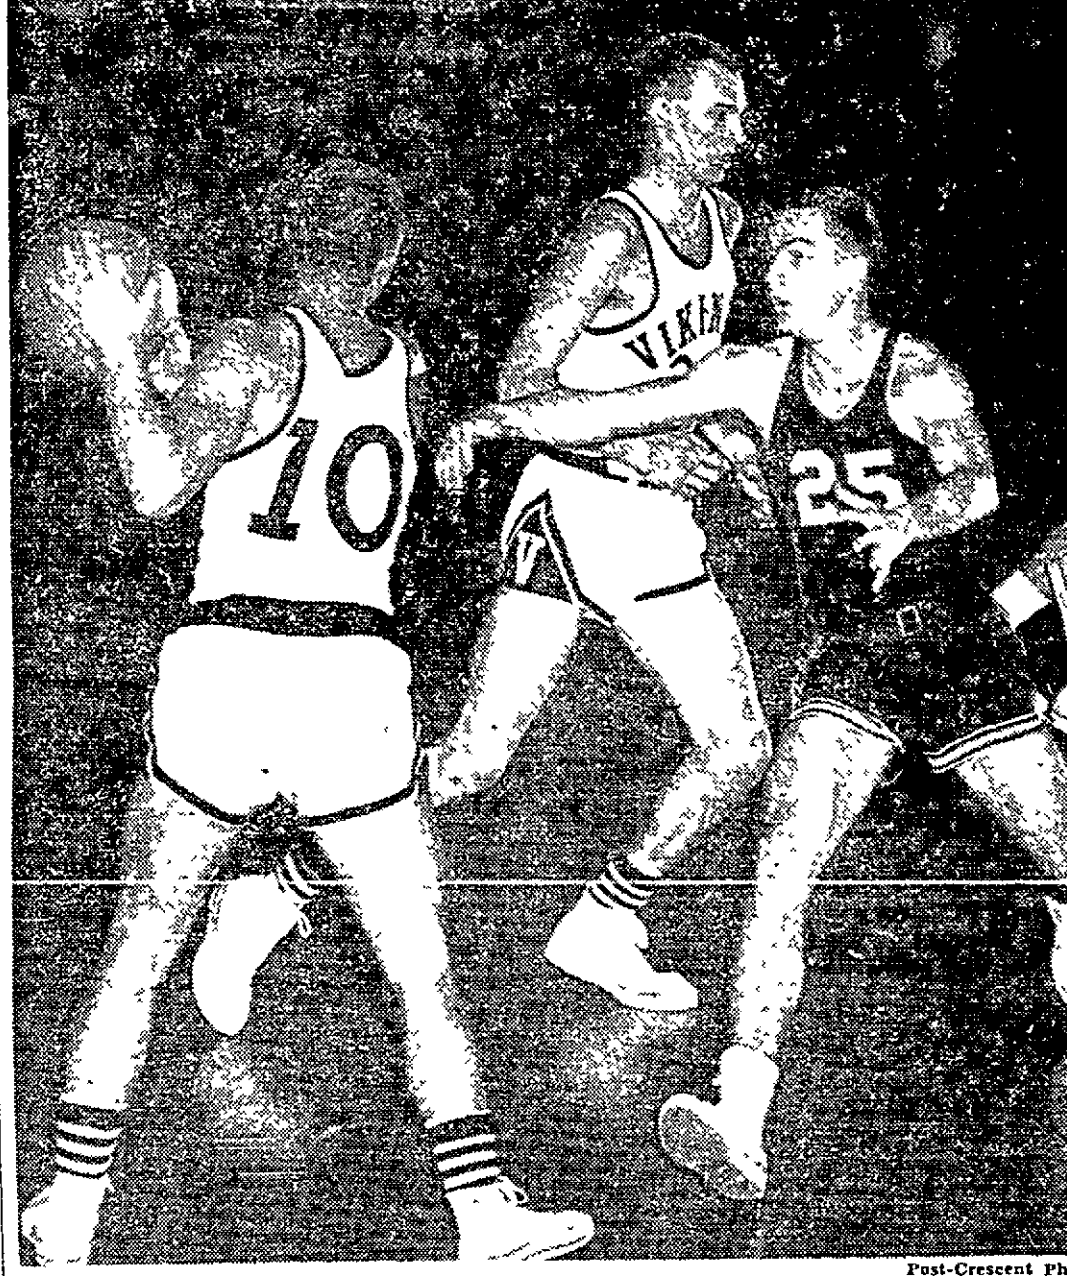

Lawrence swished merely 14 baskets (by far its season's low) in 64 shots, and many of those misses were from within ten feet of the hoop. The depths of futility were probed in the second half when Lawrence connected only six times in 40 tries.

The game would have been even more 1-sided if the losers hadn't punched home 30 of 40 free throw tries (75 per cent) Only Joe Lamers (3-for-6) and Gradman (3-for-5) of the Vike regulars had much shooting luck. Former Shawano High all-stater Loren Wolf, making his first varsity start at Lawrence, missed all nine of his shots. Jim Schulze (2-for-15) "Chuck" Knocke (1-for-9) and Rasmussen (3-for-14) weren't much better.

Board Battler

To his credit, Wolf was a battler on the boards, leading both clubs in rebounds, unofficially, with 12. The 6-4 junior transfer student, who did not practice regularly first semester, showed no rust from the free throw line

He's on Defense Here, but Cornell's Ron Altenberg (25) played plenty of offense Friday night in the Rams' 76-58 victory over Lawrence, scoring 36 points. "Chuck" Knocke of the Vikes has the ball and cutting behind Altenberg is Loren Wolf.

77-64 victory over Clintonville here Friday night.

The victory put the Neenah Mid-Eastern conference record at 6-4 while the Truckers skidded to a 2-8 mark.

Clintonville stayed with the favored Rockets through the first half but fell behind in the third period. Although the Truckers made a desperate try to come back near the end of the third stanza they could not overcome the margin.

Neenah, led by Dick Wilson's and Jack Ankerson's long range hitting, took a 19-13 first period lead. Wilson finished as the game's top scorer with 11 field goals and four free throws for 26 points. Ankerson chipped in with 21.

Clintonville came back in the second period with 19 points while Neenah added 16. This made the score 35-32 at the intermission.

Westphal led the scoring for the Truckers with 16 points, 10 coming via the free throw line.

AFL Reportedly Offers Gungel Important Job

Philadelphia — The new fact that Gungel was not American Football league has given the post of NFL commissioner as many had expected. Instead, the NFL owners last month elected Pete Rozelle, former general manager of the Los Angeles Rams.

However, Gungel was re-elected treasurer for one year and given a $5,000 pay boost to $15,000.

Asked if the AFL had contacted him about a job, Gungel said today:

"It's been mentioned in a very informal way. I naturally guess they would like to have me, but that doesn't mean it's a war with the NFL."

"I haven't made up my mind as to whether I'll stay in the NFL," Gungel added, "I sometimes wonder about my own security and that of my family. I was only re-elected for a 1-year term and I don't know what will happen after that."

Asked if he was disappointed about not being elected NFL commissioner, Gungel said:

"No, I don't think you can say that. It was a little rough down there (Miami Beach meetings), and you get cut up. But I didn't campaign. I tried to do the best job. I just got caught in the middle."

Kafura, Roxo Vie For 1st Place in AHS Cage League

The Kafura Electric and Roxo '55s were to battle for the undisputed lead of the Appleton High School American Basketball league today. Both have 5-1 records.

Dick Bloomer scored 20 points last week as Roxo beat the River team (0-6), 50-32. Stan Baehman scored 19 for the losers. Kafura beat VFW (3-3), 62-44, with Dave Walter scoring 18. VFW's Ron Tollefson hit 15 points.

In the league's third game, Northside (3-3) stopped Wenzel Plumbing (2-4) 75-32, with Ron DeBoth getting 23 points. Tom Bauer, of the losers, hit 15.

In this week's play in the National Intramural league, first-place Pond's will seek its seventh straight victory at the expense of Jack Stewart (3-3). Last week, Pond's whipped winless Heller's laundrette, 101-29, with Dave Nymoen and Bill Miller scoring 29 each. Doug Lemons scored 16 of the losers' points.

UCT (3-3) beat Stewart, 51-46. Jack Falcus led the winners with 24 points; John Wiley hit 16 for the losers.

Runerup Chemco (5-1) beat the Police team (1-5), 62-57, as Tom Van Wyk and Dick Wankey each counted 17. Dick Zanzig, of the Police, took game honors with 18.

Marciano Rejects $1,000,000 Offer From Norris

Pittsburgh — There are any number of persons who would gladly go in a boxing ring for a million dollars. But the man who at one time was the most vicious boxer in the world has turned down such an offer.

Rocky Marciano, who retired four years ago as the world heavyweight boxing champion, said Friday that he refused a million-dollar offer by Jim Norris to re-

However, Marciano said he would accept a three-million-dollar offer if the pay were spread over a 10-year period.

"I'd be silly if I didn't take an offer like that," Rocky said. "But one million all in one chunk—it wouldn't be worth it."

Joe Campbell Shoots 1st Ace In 'Classic'

day on the 205-yard fifth hole at Tamarisk Country club.

This gave the 24-year-old professional from New York a stake on the $50,000 posted for any pro scoring an ace in the tournament.

It turned out that Campbell's fortune wasn't as fabulous as it first appeared. It seems he and a pro buddy, Buddy Sullivan, have an agreement to split anything they win on the tournament circuit.

And it also developed that Campbell has an agreement to split half his earnings with his sponsor, Charlie Faust, operator of a Knoxville, Tenn., public course.

So, unless some other pro shoots a hole-in-1 to divide the big prize further, Campbell's $50,000 shot is really worth only $12,500.

He's not unhappy, however. "I still think it's good business," he said, fondling the No. 3-iron which contributed to the shot.

Campbell's ace helped him to a 69 and a 54-hole score of 211, seven strokes behind the leader.

Today the field of 132 pros and some 396 amateurs headed into the fourth round of the 90-hole tournament.

Four strokes off the pace were Ken Venturi, Billy Maxwell, and Stan Leonard.

Five back were such threats as Art Wall Jr., Dutch Harrison, Jack Burke, Jr., Gene Littler, and Jay Hebert.

The winners had a 59-7 scoring edge in the final three stanzas. The Junior Hawks, who meet the Oshkosh Lourdes "B" team at Lourdes

Lonigro Sparks 4th Quarter Rally For 53-50 Win

The fast-moving Appleton High school junior varsity basketball team rallied in the final quarter to edge Fond du Lac, 53-50, registering its sixth win in the last seven starts.

Guard Tom Lonigro scored seven points in the final three minutes to spark the Junior Terror comeback. Lonigro's fast-break goal brought the hosts within one point, 48-47. John Manier's free throw tied it with 1:56 to play.

Kalk Ties It

Lonigro intercepted and drove for the tie-breaking basket. But Fondy's Jim Kalk made a pair of free throws with 48 seconds left to knot it at 50-50.

Lonigro scored the winning basket from 15 feet away with :37 to go and added an insurance point with 6 seconds left.

Lonigro and Mike Lee combined for 41 points—the former getting 21. The teams finished even in field goals (22), but Appleton made nine of 19 from the free throw line. Fondy sank only six of 16.

Fondy, which entered the game tied for first place in the Fox Valley JV conference, now has a 7-3 record. AHS is 6-4.

Winter Ice Fishing

Witbro Invention May Make Bobber Obsolete

West De Pere Man's 'Tele-Bite' More Sensitive to Fish

By JOHN LEE

For the majority, fishing is just a relaxing hobby, a sedative of sorts that seems to slow down the flow of adrenalin.

But fortunately there also exist some individuals to whom fish present a running challenge. If they happen to be of a resourceful and inventive nature, this obsession can lead to a fine art. The hobby is not only a fine art, but it can be a business. Many fishermen are employed by the auto industry to design and build fishing equipment.

Witbro, a former auto industry worker in the auto industry, has designed a device which he calls "Tele-Bite". It is a fishing device which is designed to be used in winter ice fishing. It is a fishing device which is designed to be used in winter ice fishing.

The result of Witbro's device is a fishing device which is designed to be used in winter ice fishing. It is a fishing device which is designed to be used in winter ice fishing.

AMAZING SUPER SENSING DEVICE NOW TAKES THE GUESSWORK OUT OF ICE FISHING!

Someone once said, "Everybody talks about the weather, but nobody does anything about it." The same thing has been true about ice fishing—or at least it was true until three years ago when Tele-Bite was born.

What is Tele-Bite? Scientifically speaking, it is a super sensitive device designed to alert you ice fishermen when a fish is moving your bait. Previously, you relied on your bobber to signal you when you had a nibble.

But two things made the bobber unreliable. The first was "line loss" or stretch which permitted a fish, deep in the water, to nibble at the bait but because of the distance and stretch of the scribed his early pre-occupation with fishing plugs. Helin wasn't satisfied with the "action" produced by standard commercial plugs then on the market. He began whittling and throwing, whittling and throwing until fish really took notice. The result, of course, was introduction of the world-renowned "Flatfish".

Shawano Beats New London on Hot Second Half

Ron Hoppe Scores 20 Points In 71 to 50 M-E Triumph

Shawano — Breaking loose for 42 points in the last half, the Shawano Indians defeated New London, 71-50, here Friday night.

The triumph boosts Shawano's Mid-Eastern conference record to 6-4 for the season while New London has a 1-9 mark.

The Indians hit a blistering 17 for 32 on field goals in the last half while the Bulldogs had trouble finding the range and had to settle for 12 points in each of the third and fourth frames.

Commanding Lead

Shawano took a commanding lead at the outset of the third period by hitting 10 straight points. The Bulldogs failed to score a field goal for the first four minutes of the third period and managed only three buckets the entire quarter.

New London started the game fast by moving to a 7-2 lead. The Indians closed the gap and tied it at 9-9 and each team added another bucket to make it 11-11 at the end of the period. Shawano had an 18-15 scoring edge in the second quarter for a 3-point lead at the half.

Ron Hoppe was the big gun for the Indians with 20 points. Tom Laux scored 14 for New London before fouling out with three minutes left.

Marv Levy Will Coach Cal '11

Coe Graduate Posted 7-3 Mark At New Mexico

Berkeley, Calif. — Bright, handsome Marv Levy is the new head football coach at the University of California.

Two months of speculation ended abruptly Friday with the surprise signing of Levy to replace Pete Elliott, who left Cal after last season to become head coach at Illinois.

Levy, 34, virtually unknown here, comes to Berkeley from the University of New Mexico where he compiled 7-3 records in 1958 and 1959.

Levy is a graduate of Coe college in Cedar Rapids, Iowa. He earned his master's degree from Harvard in history.

At Coe he won eight letters—three on football, three in track and two in basketball.

Levy said he didn't realize he was in the running for the job until a week ago when he received a telephone call from Cal's athletic director, Greg Englehard. Levy flew here from Albuquerque Tuesday and was interviewed four times.

He signed a 3-year contract for an estimated $15,000.

Cornell Beats Viking Quint

where he converted nine of 11 attempts.

The hosts had a big height advantage over Cornell and accumulated a 41-37 rebounding edge. Lawrence's starting lineup (with the high-scoring Knocke benched for missing two practices) averaged about 6-3.

Knocke's 3-point total was his lowest of the season and marked just the second time all year he's been held under 15. Viking Coach Don Boya used guards Schulze and Knocke, alternately, much of the time and when just one of the two was in the lineup Lawrence frequently had trouble moving the ball against the pressing Rams.

Early Lead

Lawrence snatched an early 6-2 lead and stayed right with the visitors during most of the first half. The last Viking advantage was 25-23 with about 5:30 remaining in the half, the result of a Rasmussen medium-range jumper.

Altenberg, who had been held to just six counters at that point, broke loose for eight of his club's next 11 and the visitors possessed a 36-30 halftime lead.

The owner of an approximate 29-point per-game conference scoring average, Altenberg flipped Cornell's first eight markers of the second half and 12 of the initial 14. Then, with Cornell on top, 50-39, at the 13:50 mark, he picked up his fourth foul and was rested.

A Bob Blust close-range basket and a Schulze lay-up after a steal cut Cornell's lead to 56-50 with approximately 8:30 showing. Altenberg took charge again with two 30-foot bombs, a free throw and a rebound basket and it was a more-comfortable 63-52.

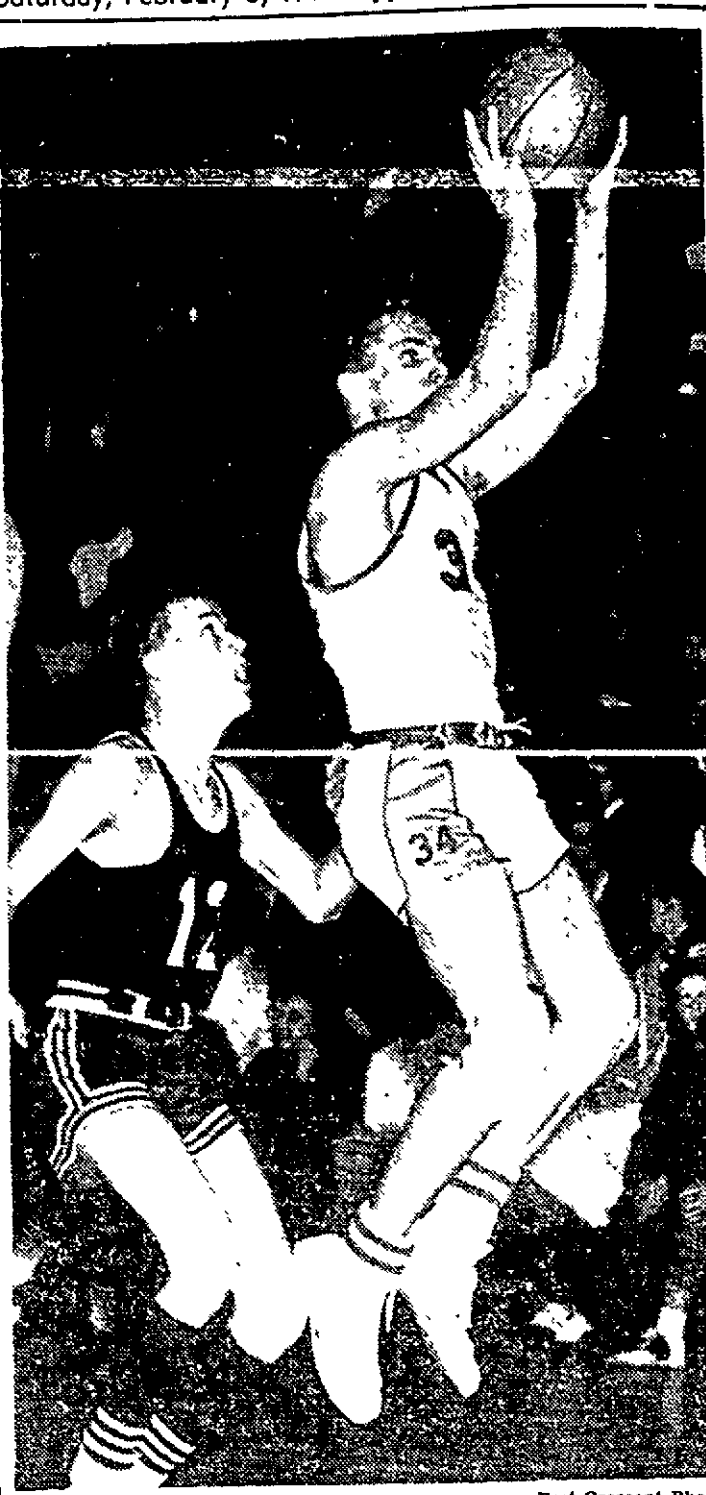

Ron's best offensive display ever was 43 against Grinnell. He's hit 38 twice. Altenberg and 6-0 Dennis Weeden were Cornell's top rebounders, with eight. John Van Meter, of Lawrence had seven.

the contest in the second period as the Raiders' lead varied from three to six points. Two Rivers left the floor at halftime with a 44-39 advantage and had a shooting average of slightly over 55 per cent. Kaukauna, meanwhile, had maintained about a 40 per cent average.

Uphill Fight
The Purple Raiders felt they had Kaukauna on the run, and two quick baskets by Dave Belonger to open the third quarter zoomed the lead to nine points before Ken Kavanaugh hit two quick baskets to again bring the Ghosts back.

The two teams began to match points until about midway in the period when Koprowski was lost to the Raiders on five fouls. The Ghosts then put on a display of balanced scoring to overtake the leaders and tie the count at 58-58 and hit in the closing minute to leave the floor with a 60-58 lead at the end of the third frame.

Two Rivers was still not through; the losers scored seven straight points to take a 65-60 lead before Weyenberg finally netted one for Kaukauna. The Ghosts tied the game at 70-70 with four minutes remaining. Three times in the closing four minutes the score was tied, and five times the lead changed hands.

Weyenberg was big scoring gun for Kaukauna with 33 points on 13 baskets and seven free throws. He was well supported by Bill Borchardt, who scored 26 points and played an outstanding floor game, particularly against the press when bringing the ball up the floor.

The losers relied on real balance to keep in the contest with all five players hitting in double figures. Top gun was Tom Lawrence with 19 points.

Kimberly Edge Jays In Hectic M-E Game

out of the dressing room to the free throw line, referee Mel Nicks was dispatched from downstairs and Hearden calmly dropped in both chances for a final spread of four points.

Cautious Ball

Playing cautious ball and attempting a shot only when the possibility of missing was very remote, the Jays moved to a 16-12 first period lead and were on top, 38-23, at halftime after leading by 17 points a couple of times.

Coach Lucian Gajewski's thinking was that the Menashans tried to run with the Papermakers in their game at Kimberly and saw them roll up 94 points, so he would have nothing to lose by attempting slow-down tactics.

In the second period, Menasha only took nine shots, making eight and the one missed was a layup. The Blue and White finished with a fantastic 62 per cent shooting mark but they only attempted 37.

Kimberly Uses Press
Menasha, known for years on years for its pressing defense, found the tables turned in the third period when the Papermakers used that strategy most effectively. Stealing the ball a couple of times and forcing the Jays to miscue on other occasions, the victors kept chewing at the lead and with 1:43 left in the frame caught their hosts at 45-41.

Failing to falter just yet, Menasha hit the next six points on its way to a 53-47 advantage at the 3-period juncture.

The fourth canto was a dandy all the way. Kimberly made the first goal, cutting the spread to four points. The clubs exchanged 2-pointers until at 57-55 Jay Drzewicki and Dave Ristau tallied upping to 61-55 with two minutes remaining. That ended the Jays scoring for the night.

At the 1:35 mark, Tom Peerenboom canned two free throws and 13 seconds later Hearden missed one but Tom Violette, Paul VanderHeyden and John Nussbaum joined Abel as double-figure gunners with 12, 10 and 10, respectively.

Though Bob Cavert, Marty Schultz and Pete Treiber tallied only seven points among them, they played telling roles in other respects. Schultz produced his best rebounding in a month and joined with Abel and VanderHeyden in dominating the boards after the initial quarter.

The Terrors shot 456 (26 of 57) from the floor and .632 (12 for 19) from the free throw line. The harassed Cards averaged only .274 (20 for 73) from the floor and .548 (17 for 31) from the line.

Each Swishes 5
Abel ripped the cords on 11 of 25 shots from the field to exceed by one his best previous basket aggregate. His 25 points is second only to his 29 point night against West in the FRVC season opener. VanderHeyden and LaViolette each swished five shots—in 8 and 10 attempts, respectively.

The best total Fondy could manage was Jack Nussbaum's 11 points.

The heralded debut of the previously high-scoring Al Esther in a Cardinal uniform proved inauspicious. Esther, who understandably couldn't become part of a new offense in a matter of days since his transfer from GBW, was held to four points in his nearly three quarters of action. Esther made only one of nine field shots as he played on a losing team against AHS for the third time this season.

No Hint
The first quarter gave no hint of what was to come. Fondy doubled the score on AHS in continuing to play the type of unrelenting, ball-hawking game that had amazed FRVC followers for much of the season. Jack Nussbaum and Bob Hochrein each scored two baskets to lead the first-period offensive.

At the outset of the second quarter, LaViolette and Bob Tadman traded baskets to leave the margin at nine points (20-11). That Tadman goal proved to be the only one Fondy could muster in the entire quarter as the zone press, which the Terrors unloaded from the opening tip-off, began to unnerve the visitors.

With the score, 21-14, against them, the Terrors unloaded a 9-point burst that gave them the lead for the first time since early in the contest.

LaViolette knocked the first two bricks out of the Fondy zone with a corner shot and a bulls-eye from 25 feet. VanderHeyden scored on a short pivot shot. John Nussbaum followed with a free throw on a technical foul, resulting from Coach "Swede" Smedberg's strenuous disagreement with an official's call. Abel hit from underneath, and AHS led, 23-21.

Ken Wilderman's free throw and a pair of charity successes by Mike Murphy put Fondy ahead for the last time, 24-23.

Ahead to Stay
Abel's corner goal, with 1:42 left in the half, gave the Terrors a 25-24 lead, and they were never caught again.

The Terrors were off and running in the second half, quickly lengthening their 4-point intermission edge. Abel scored on a drive and a short

Library Selection Aids in Planning Summer Vacation

Neenah — Even though winter winds are still howling and snow is on the ground, many people will be spending the evening hours planning a summer vacation.

The Neenah public library has "Leahy's Hotel - Motel Guide and Travel Atlas," as a valuable aid to planning a route.

The new selection has been added to the library reference collection. It gives information about the location of resorts, hotels and motels throughout the United States as well as the number of rooms in each and other pertinent data.

A vivid description of the new Tokyo is presented by Fosco Maraini in his "Meeting With Japan." Maraini, in this illustrated selection, takes the reader on a tour of places of interest in Japan and discusses history, art, customs, tradition and literature.

London in 1941. Richard Collier, in "The City That Would Not Die," presents personal accounts by the survivors of what happened during the last German attack on London in May of 1941 when 1,500 persons were killed and many injured.

"The Red Executive," by David Granick illustrates how the Russian office executive resembles and differs from his American counterpart and shows the relationship between business and government in Russia.

Two new biographies are among the selections available at the library. "A Life in the Theatre," is the autobiography of Tyrone Guthrie. Police were told Lee and another person went outside a coffee shop to fight after a dispute in the place.

French May be Added to NHS Curriculum

Probably Would Need 25 Students, Borgen Explains

Neenah. — French again may be added to the foreign language program at Neenah High school if there is sufficient interest, Prin. Harley Borgen announced Friday. Currently 20 students have indicated an interest in taking a 2-year course. A minimum of 25 probably would be necessary to guarantee the course.

Currently Neenah High offers two years each in Latin, Spanish and German. Borgen explained that French courses were dropped about 15 years ago because of lack of interest, then four years ago one class went through the 2-year program after which interest fell off.

German also was offered about 14 years ago but was dropped for lack of interest. The German course was revived a year ago last September.

Need Word New Borgen emphasized that if parents and students are interested in adding the French course to the program notice should be given now so proper programs can be arranged. In addition, three new teachers are to be hired for next year and, if there is interest, one will be secured with at least a strong French minor.

Student Council At NHS to Name Venetian Queen

Neenah — The Student council at Neenah High school again will have charge of naming a Venetian Queen for the annual Neenah Fourth of July celebration sponsored by the Neenah-Menasha Junior Chamber of Commerce, Prin. Harley Borgen announced today.

A queen from the senior class as well as an attendant from each of the four classes will be named through a student election late in February.

Officers of the Student council will serve as the steering committee for the balloting. They are Dick Wilson, president; Steve Den Dooven, vice president; Mary Reiersen, secretary; and Julie Wamsley, treasurer.

Two students also have been appointed by the council to work with the American Association of University Women in the foreign exchange student program. They are Tina Pertain, a sophomore, and Penny Yates, a freshman.

Traffic Forfeitures

Neenah — Aldon J. Mueller, 43, 211 Smith street, forfeited $10 and costs today for speeding. He was clocked at 44 m.p.h. early Thursday while driving south on N. Commercial street.

William J. Thiel, Jr., 19, route 1, Larsen, forfeited $2 and costs for having faulty mufflers on his car. Police arrested him Jan. 30 for making his car's engine "bark."

Alleged Beating of Neenah Man Reported

Menasha — Police are investigating the alleged beating of Jerome Lee, 21, 315 First street, Neenah, about 11 p.m. Friday in the alley behind the water and light department office.

Lee was taken by Neenah ambulance to Theda Clark Memorial hospital for treatment of cuts and bruises and observation. Police were told Lee and another person went outside a coffee shop to fight after a dispute in the place.

Jewelry Store Theft Reported

Undisclosed Sum Taken From Safe At Valley Fair Oshkosh — An undisclosed amount of money was taken from the safe at the Scanlan Jewelry store at the Valley Fair shopping center Friday afternoon.

Vincent Scanlon contacted authorities at 4 p. m. to report the money, which was in a brown leatherette banking bag, was missing from the safe. He said he had cashed a check for over $100 for a customer about 3 p. m. and had put the check in the bag, which he returned to the safe.

Scanlon said that about 4 p. m. he returned to the unlocked safe to get change and found the money bag was missing. ## Razing of Old Walter Brothers Plant to Erase Menasha Landmark Menasha — Purchase of the old Walter Brothers Brewing company plant at Ahnaip street and Nicolet boulevard will erase a Menasha landmark forever.

The old brewery is being razed by Madison Moving and Wrecking company of Oshkosh.

St. Patrick congregation is about to purchase 195 feet of frontage on the boulevard, its eastern boundary the center line of abandoned Chestnut street. The land includes three 65-foot and one 30-foot lots, plus 15 feet of the abandoned street right-of-way. The land to be taken over by the parish is 195 feet deep.

The parish has not announced its intended use for the land.

Filling Station The other portion is an irregular and more or less triangular-shaped parcel, to provide 110 feet of frontage on Ahnaip street. The other 15 feet of the street will be included.

Final negotiations will be carried on in the next few weeks between the owner, R. C. Bridges, and the congregation and an as yet unannounced oil company, which will build a service station. Total sale price is about $84,000.

Democrats Feel Pinch in Party Funds

Slow Growth, High Costs Blamed for $10,000 Deficit

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — The Democratic late party organization, which boosted its normal budget of expenditures when the Democrats took over the state government a year ago, is having its difficulties staying in the black.

Chairman Patrick J. Lucey in a report on the party's finances for 1959 advised the state committee that its $89,000 budget for the year showed a deficit of about $10,000.

One of the reasons for the deficit in the ledgers is that "sponsoring" and "sustaining" memberships have not come in at the volume that had been expected when the expenditures program was aid out and approved.

"Housekeeping Budget" The party has been soliciting members among more affluent sympathizers at $30 for the "sustaining" category and $100 for the "sponsoring" classification.

The party has a "housekeeping budget" of about $36,000 a year which covers the normal disbursements of the party headquarters here.

Major outlays beyond that budget include the salaries and expenses of a pair of field organizers, contributions to the Democratic national committee which has said that the state party has been in arrears for some time, and the publication of the party newspaper, a relatively new venture which is now budgeted at $10,000 a year and will probably cost more when the publication schedule is stepped up.

The party newspaper has started to sell advertising.

Outdoor Life Doesn't Give Baby Rosy Cheeks

It's nice to be outdoors on beautiful days and if you can find the time, take your baby for a walk. But don't feel that the world will collapse or we know that sunshine—that your child will suffer terrible harm if you don't get him out. You can be just as good a mother indoors as out. There is a common feeling circulates around the baby's that babies become pale when body and keeps his bones in they stay indoors too long. good condition. Nowadays we know how to give Vitamin D. This is only a superstition. The healthy rosy color we like to babies by mouth so it is not to see comes from good longer necessary for them to eat health and good nourish get this vitamin only from ing food. Of course, brisk cold weather brings color to the cheeks but cold weather doesn't make the red blood. Use Common Sense

Don't Panic
There is also a feeling that fresh air increases the appetite. Perhaps, it does a little. Anyone, baby or grownup, is out in the cold he needs a bit more food to make the extra heat needed to keep his body at an even temperature. But this does not mean he is any healthier because he has eaten and used up a few more calories of food.

In very cold weather children are so bundled up to go outdoors they cannot move around as vigorously as they can indoors with less clothes. This is an argument for plenty of indoor playtime during the winter months. Sunshine is another reason for getting outdoors. Surely, it's nice and it's pleasant to get out into the warm sun, but it's not so important that you must break your neck to get in the house. Enjoy your outdoors. Time was when sunshinings whenever you can man-shine was more important for babies than it is today. In when you skip them.

Reedsville and Shiocton posted decisive victories Friday night to remain tied for the lead in the Little Nine conference basketball race. The Panthers dumped Freedom, 70-51. Darel Stueck counted 17, and Rollie Zipperer and Ken Behnke 15 apiece to pace Reedsville which led all the way and had a big rebounding advantage. The high-scoring Zipperer was playing for the first time in two weeks, after being sidelined with an injury. The winners hit 37 per cent from the floor, the losers 27 per cent.

Shiocton thumped rough Omro, 55-40, making a 21-4 free throw bulge over the losers pay off. The officials called 23 fouls on the Foxes and six on Shiocton, and the Chiefs put in 21 of their 36 gratis shots. Omro made 4-for-7 from the foul line. The Chiefs hit just 30 per cent from the floor, their worst average of the year. John Johnson tallied 18 to lead Shiocton, now 14-1 on the season and the ninth-rated club in the WIAA's "Little Sixteen."

Phil Bengston Speaker for Traffic Fete

Club Schedules Sportsman Night Dinner Tuesday

Neenah — Phil Bengston, Green Bay Packers defensive line coach, will be the main speaker at the Fox Valley Traffic Club's annual sports dinner at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Valley Inn.

Bengston, a year ago Thursday was named to the Packers staff, tutored the Bays' highly-effective defensive forward wall which helped the Wisconsin squad to a 7-5 National Pro league record last fall. Taking a mixture of rookies, trade acquisition and veterans, Bengston molded the defensive unit into one of the best in the circuit.

A native of St. Paul, Minn., Bengston was an All-American tackle at the University of Minnesota in 1933 and 1934 when the Golden Gophers, under Coach Bernie Bierman, were the scourge of the collegiate football world.

Joins Missouri Staff
After climaxing his playing career in the Shrine East-West game, he joined the staff of Coach Don Farout at the University of Missouri.

He went west in 1940 with Coach Clark Shaughnessy and had an important role in the development of the famed Stanford "Cinderella" team which captured the Pacific Coast conference title and then trounced Nebraska in the Rose Bowl.

After four years in the Navy in World War II, the Packers assistant returned to Stanford in 1946 as the chief aide of Coach Markey Schwartz. He joined the San Francisco 49ers staff in 1951 under Coach "Buck" Shaw and after building some of the toughest lines in the NFL during his eight seasons with Frisco he left that squad after the 1958 season when a new regime took over. Shortly thereafter he was signed by the Packers, one of the first assistants chosen by Coach Vince Lombardi. Bengston is married and is the father of three children.

Fred Kurth, first vice president of the Traffic club, is in charge of the program. Last year's dinner, at which Tom Miller of the Packers was scheduled to be the speaker, was cancelled because of a blizzard.

St. Mary Freshmen Meet Springs Club

Menasha — The St. Mary freshmen cagers will meet Springs academy at Fond du Lac at 7:30 p.m. Sunday. The Zephyrs have a 6-1 record against high school opposition including a 39-20 victory over the Springers.

Creek, 72-40, as 11 players scored for the Polar Bears. Gary Kohl and Larry Collar were high with 13 apiece, as the Bears stayed one game behind the co-leaders. Tom McClone collected 16 for Bear Creek.

Winneconne outpointed Denmark, 71-63, leading all the way after a 12-12 first quarter. The losers' Arnie Gorske poured in 29 points including 11 of 12 free throws. Winneconne's Martin Day and Dale Johnson scored 15 points.

Hilbert was a 48-34 winner over Wrightstown, staying in front for the route. Danny Lamers, 5-8 guard, hit over half the losers' points (18). Clare Ott's 15 paced Hilbert.

Sturgeon Season Opens Thursday; Expect Good Kill

Water Clear; Spearing Conditions Good; Only Winnebago, Little Butte des Morts Open This Year

BY JAY REED
Post-Crescent Outdoor Editor

Stockbridge Harbor — The membership drive opens next Thursday for that considerable number of outdoorsmen interested in joining one of the most exclusive fishing organizations in America—the “I bagged a sturgeon club.”

The annual spearing season for the huge fish will continue through March 1 on Lake Winnebago and Little Lake Butte des Morts only. There will be no spearing on Lakes Poygan, Winneconne and Big Butte des Morts.

The bag limit is one sturgeon per fisherman per season. The minimum size remains at 40 inches.

New Laws

One of the new laws with which spearsmen must be concerned this year is the special $2.50 license required of all fishermen. The price includes a sturgeon tag.

All indications point to a successful season, veteran sturgeon hunters here say. Water clarity is good. There is little or no snow cover on the big lake and travel conditions are good. Ice thickness varies from 16 to 20 or more inches.

We dropped a white disc into about 20 feet of water at one point and we could see it clearly, thus indicating that spearing conditions, in so far as visibility is considered, will be good.

Poor Weather

Poor weather—extreme cold, high winds and heavy snow—curbed the kill of the big fish last year. Lake Winnebago produced 221 sturgeon; Lake Poygan 270; Winneconne 7 and Big Butte des Morts 20. Together the registered fish weighed in the area of five tons.

The kill this year probably will drop below 1959 figures because Poygan will be closed; Winnebago, however, can be expected to produce a somewhat heavier harvest than last year.

Registration of speared fish must be completed within 24 hours after the fish is taken. At the station a registration tag will be attached to the fish and both that tag and the fisherman's own sturgeon tag must remain on the fish until it is prepared for eating.

$10 Reward

The conservation department is again offering a $10 reward to any spearer who bags a sturgeon which had been tagged by the state. About 1,500 sturgeon are carrying numbered tags of some type. Look for metal tags on the side of the snout, on the back just before the dorsal fin and in the tail. Plastic dart gags are found on the side just before or adjacent to the back fin.

To qualify for the reward, the spearer must return the tag, allow the two front fin bones to be cut off, and allow the removal of the innards. If the tagged sturgeon has eggs, you can keep them all except for a small sample required by the fish biologist.

The $10 payment will be sent to your home within thirty days.

You Can't Change Bridges in Midstream

New Haven, Conn. — Five youths thought it would be great sport to stay on the midsection of a bridge as it pivoted open for an oil tanker going up the Quinnipiac river.

After an hour and 15 minutes, however, the fun wore off. A chain used to pull the midsection back into place snapped, and it took authorities that long to lasso the structure with a tow-line.

Oxen Used on Ohio Farm for Daily Work

Jackson, Ohio — Ox teams with wooden yokes still work daily in the farming and lumbering operations of Carl Swaney and his father Herman on their farm near here.

The six teams of oxen on the farm haul logs from where they are cut to waiting trucks. The younger Swaney sometimes hitches the teams to an old covered wagon for parade appearances, and also makes the yokes for the teams.

“If we get our hands on him,” Goehle promised grimly, “the Restless Gun will rest in peace.”

Various Levels of the Wolf river during the fall and winter is demonstrated by the layers of ice left stranded on trees. The Wolf River Improvement association is heading a drive to have the Wolf river surveyed to attempt to establish a permanent water level.

Water Resources Committee Will be Invited to Take Tour of Wolf River

New London — The water resources committee will be invited to take part in a conducted tour of the Wolf River watershed from Oshkosh to New London. The committee meets in Madison Tuesday.

Gene Garrow, president of the Wolf River Improvement association and a member of the legislative council interim committee, will present the invitation from the New London Boat club.

Garrow explained the interim committee will be asked to take two tours of the river, once during high water level and once during the summer when the level is low.

Drainage Laws

The Feb. 9 meeting has been called to study the report on problems relating to abandonment of dams. The committee will then study the drainage laws before taking up the study of the Wolf river watershed.

In the meantime, interest in the Wolf River Improvement association is spreading to a number of the cities and communities along the Wolf river.

Garrow has had a number of speaking engagements during which he explained that the purpose of the association is to attempt to establish a permanent water level.

He said a constant water level would remove the threat of floods and provide one of the

Plan Hearing On Outdoor Poison Use

Sportsmen, Nature Lovers Concerned About Toxic Sprays

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — Nature lovers, sportsmen, pet owners and others who are worried about the increasing use of toxic chemical sprays will have their inning at a legislative hearing here Monday.

A legislative study committee will hold a hearing to consider the complaints of those persons who have worried that the incautious use of insecticides is having a serious effect on the wildlife of the state, and may also have a harmful effect upon the human population.

Study Question

The study question was listed by the committee in response to a demand of various civic groups, including the Conservation Alliance of Milwaukee county.

Their petition said that conflicting interests in the field have been unable to agree upon a sound plan for the public regulation of insecticides that will protect both the plant and animal life of the state.

Limited Powers

Some state agencies have limited powers in the field, but their orders have not won general acceptability and are also limited in their geographical effect.

The legislative committee headed by Assemblyman Howard Pellant of Milwaukee, chairman of the state assembly standing committee on conservation matters, was directed to “determine the most effective manner in which to regulate the use of insecticides so as to provide the great possible production of food for our people while preserving the wild life of the state and protecting human life.”

It will report to the 1961 legislature.

Special Honors Given Students At Bonduel High

Bonduel — The seniors captured four special honors in the second 9-week honor roll at Bonduel High school. The sophomores had three and the juniors, one.

The seniors are Donna Adershold, John Boelter, Steve Nault and Karen Radtke.

Ruth Boelter, Lynda Jensen and Lenore Senzig are the sophomores and John Krueger is the junior. The freshmen failed to place a student in the special honors list.

141 Students On Seymour Honor Rolls

Seymour — The first semester honor roll at Seymour Union High school lists 141 students, 24 of which made the A honor roll and the remainder the B list.

Seniors topped both lists in numbers, according to Supt. L. D. Culver and Milton Main, high school principal. They had 10 making the high honors and 39 listed on the B roll. Sophomores had six students making the high list and 30 on the other.

Juniors were next with six attaining the top in scholastic standing and 30 hitting the B honors. The freshmen had two students on the top list and 24 on the second.

Seniors attaining the A list were Nancy Brownson, Judith Karweick, Janice Lathrop, Allen Malueg, Judith Marcks, Nancy Nussbaum, Karen Os-

Cut-Out Pictures Framed With Lace Paper Doilies

Lace paper doilies make good frames for cut-out pictures of Colonial people, flowers, stage coaches and many of the pictures that can be removed from last year's Christmas cards. One or two such pictures will be attractive on the wall of your room.

When you buy a package of lace paper doilies at the 10-cent store, you will find some are stuck together because of the pressure used by the machinery when the lace was punched into them. By lifting off three or four together and keeping them that way, a picture frame of suitable thickness can be made.

Dip the lace part of the unit of doilies into melted paraffin (Figure 1) and let it dry. This will stiffen the doilies. Next, cut the center out of the doilies.

Select a suitable picture to frame. Figures 2 and 3 show examples. Old-fashioned floral pictures are well-suited to this purpose. Pictures of Colonial women and men are also good to use. Perhaps a picture you like can be found on an old Valentine.

Trim the picture to the shape required by the opening, allowing it to be about half an inch bigger all around to provide room for pasting. Spread some library paste on the edge of the picture, then press it to the back of the doilies.

Glue a ribbon to the back of the frame and the picture is ready for hanging. If you have some clear shellac, a coat of it brushed over the picture will help keep it clean and also will give it a shiny appearance as though it is under glass.
